

Mythology Photography Fiction Fish
Christianity Art Cooking Essays
Buddhism Freemasonry Medicine Biology
Music Ancient Egypt Evolution
Carpentry Physics Dance Geology
Metamorphosis Fitness Shakespeare
Cosplay Yoga Marketing Confidence
Immortality Biographies Poetry
Psychology Witchcraft Electronics
Chemistry History Law Accounting
Philosophy Anthropology Alchemy Drama
Quantum Mechanics Atheism Sexuality
Mental Health Ancient History Criminal Engineering Leadership Languages Sport
Paleontology New York History
Metaphysics Investment Archaeology

Forgotten Books

— www.forgottenbooks.com —

Copyright © 2016 FB &c Ltd.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, distributed, or transmitted in any form or by any means, including photocopying, recording, or other electronic or mechanical methods, without the prior written permission of the publisher, except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical reviews and certain other noncommercial uses permitted by copyright law.

MODERN ETCHING AND ENGRAVING

EDITED BY CHARLES HOLME

1730

OFFICES OF 'THE STUDIO,' LONDON,
PARIS, NEW YORK MCMII

ERINDALE
COLLEGE LIBRARY

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

AN editor, when reviewing an important work which has just been brought to completion under his guidance, cannot but be sensible of the disparity existing between a thing done and a thing sketched out vividly in projects—in “enchanted cigarettes” as Balzac called unrealised schemes; for in books, as in all other works of art, many unexpected difficulties and disappointments interpose between conception and execution, limiting the scope of the aim in view, and lowering, more or less, the quality of craftsmanship. The fact that several modern workers of repute are unrepresented amongst the illustrations is one cause of regret; the large but unavoidable reduction in size of many of the illustrations is another; also it is felt that the absence of the raised line of the original plates causes a loss of distinction in the half-tone plates, which no amount of care in the selection of paper and in the printing could entirely remedy. There are, however, other sides of the question in the light of which the very faults of the volume become virtues; and, in spite of inevitable shortcomings, the hope is entertained that the publication will add something to the general knowledge of the subject of etching and will give an impetus to the revival of interest in one of the most delightful and personal forms of artistic expression.

THE Editor, having received much valued sympathy and help from many quarters, desires to express his cordial thanks to his foreign correspondents, to the artist-contributors, and also to the various publishers who have sanctioned the reproduction of copyright etchings, especially to Mr. C. Klackner and Mr. Frederick Keppel of New York and London, Mr. R. Gutekunst of London, Messrs. Frost and Reed of Bristol, M. E. Sagot, M. C. Hessèle and M. André Marty of Paris, and Messrs. Amsler and Ruthardt of Berlin. The American Section owes much to Mr. J. M. Bowles, of New York, and to the historical notes supplied by Mr. Louis A. Holman, of Boston.

TABLE OF LITERARY CONTENTS

MODERN ETCHING AND ENGRAVING IN

GREAT BRITAIN	-	-	-	By A. L. Baldry
AMERICA	-	-	-	„ Will Jenkins
FRANCE	-	-	-	„ Gabriel Mourey
GERMANY	-	-	-	„ Dr. Hans W. Singer
AUSTRIA	-	-	-	„ Wilhelm Schölermann
HUNGARY	-	-	-	„ Anthony Tahi
HOLLAND	-	-	-	„ Ph. Zilcken
BELGIUM	-	-	-	„ Fernand Khnopff
DENMARK & NORWAY	-	-	-	„ Georg Bröchner
FINLAND	-	-	-	„ Count Louis Sparre
ITALY	-	-	-	„ Dr. Romualdo Pantini
SWITZERLAND	-	-	-	„ Professor Robert Mobbs

ETCHERS AND ENGRAVERS : INDEX OF ILLUSTRATIONS

BRITISH SECTION.

Baker, Oliver, R.E.	Plate 25	Herkomer, Prof. H. von, R.A.	Plate 8
Ball, Wilfrid, R.E.	„ 52	Hole, William, R.S.A., R.E.	„ 38
Bayes, A. W., R.E.	„ 9	Holroyd, Charles, R.E.	„ 21
Bolingbroke, Minna, R.E.	„ 7	Holroyd, Charles, R.E.	„ 22
Brangwyn, Frank	„ 46	Huson, Thomas, R.I., R.E.	„ 39
Burridge, Fred., R.E.	„ 28	Kiddier, William	44
Burridge, Fred., R.E.	„ 29	Knight, Joseph, R.I., R.E.	„ 10
Bush, R. E. J., A.R.E.	„ 13	Legros, Prof. A., R.E.	„ 1
Bush, R. E. J., A.R.E.	„ 14	Menpes, Mortimer, R.E.	„ 50
Cameron, D. Y., R.E.	„ 32	Meyer, A. C., A.R.E.	30
Cameron, D. Y., R.E.	„ 33	Murray, J. G., A.R.E.	„ 23
Cash, John, F.R.I.B.A.	„ 53	Paton, Hugh, A.R.E.	24
Charlton, E. W., A.R.E.	„ 4	Phillips, L. B., A.R.E.	„ 48
Copeman, Constance G., A.R.E.	„ 34	Pott, Constance M., R.E.	„ 27
Crawford, Susan F., A.R.E.	„ 2	Raalte, H. B. van, A.R.E.	„ 19
Dicksee, Herbert, R.E.	„ 47	Raalte, H. B. van, A.R.E.	„ 20
Dalgliesh, T. Irving, R.E.	„ 40	Reason, R. G.	54
East, Alfred, A.R.A.	„ 15	Robertson, Arthur, A.R.E.	„ 26
East, Alfred, A.R.A.	„ 16	Robinson, Sir J. C., C.B.	„ 51
Ellis, Tristram, A.R.E.	„ 41	Roller, George, R.E.	49
Finnie, John, R.E.	„ 35	Rowe, T. Trythall	42
Goff, R., R.E.	„ 17	Short, Frank, R.E.	45
Goolden, Fred. W.	„ 31	Sloane, Mary A., A.R.E.	„ 3
Haig, Axel H., R.E.	„ 12	Slocombe, Fred, R.E.	43
Hartley, Alfred, R.E.	„ 11	Waterson, David, A.R.E.	„ 36
Herkomer, Prof. H. von, R.A.	„ 5	Waterson, David, A.R.E.	„ 37
Herkomer, Prof. H. von, R.A.	„ 6	Watson, C. J., R.E.	18

AMERICAN SECTION.

Aid, George C.	Plate 12	Burleigh, Sydney Richmond,	Plate 17
Backer, Otto H.	„ 6	Duveneck, Frank	„ 21
Bauer, W. C.	„ 3	Getchell, Edith Loring	„ 20
Beal, W. Goodrich	„ 18	Hovenden, Thomas	16

AMERICAN SECTION—continued.

• Lathrop, W. L.	Plate 9	Pennell, Joseph	Plate 13
Lewis, Arthur A.	„ 24	Platt, Charles A.	„ 22
MacLaughlan, D. Shaw	„ 11	Platt, Charles A.	23
Merritt, Anna Lea	„ 19	Rix, Julian	15
Mielatz, C. F. W.	„ 25	Stetson, Charles Walter	„ 10
Moran, Peter	„ 7	Weber, Otis S.	14
Moran, Thomas	„ 8	Whistler, James McNeill	„ 1
Oakford, Ellen	„ 4	Whistler, James McNeill	„ 4
Parrish, Stephen	5

FRENCH SECTION.

Béjot, Eugène	Plate 25	Lepère, Auguste	Plate 8
Béjot, Eugène	„ 26	Lepère, Auguste	„ 10
Besnard	„ 20	Lepère, Auguste	11
Bracquemond, Félix	„ 27	Lepère, Auguste	12
Chahine, Edgar	„ 17	Monvel, Bernard de	5
Chahine, Edgar	„ 18	Paillard, Henry	9
Dupont, R.	„ 13	Paillard, Henry	14
Dupont, R.	„ 15	Robbe, Manuel	1
Helleu, P.	„ 6	Robbe, Manuel	4
Helleu, P.	„ 7	Schuller, J. Charles	16
Huard, Charles	„ 3	Steinlen	23
Jeanniot	„ 19	Steinlen	24
Lafitte, A.	„ 22	Viala, E.	21
Leheutre, G.	2

GERMAN SECTION.

Fischer, Otto	Plate 22	Klinger, Max	Plate 12
Fischer, Otto	„ 24	Klinger, Max	„ 13
Gámbert, Otto	„ 11	Kollwitz, Käthe	16
Graf, Oscar	„ 5	Leistikow, W.	1
Graf, Oscar	„ 6	Liebermann, Max	18
Halm, Peter	„ 23	Meyer-Basel, C. T.	8
Hegenbart, Fritz	„ 19	Meyer-Basel, C. T.	9
Hegenbart, Fritz	„ 20	Overbeck, Fritz	21
Illies, Arthur	„ 25	Pankok, Bernhard	„ 17
Kalckreuth, Leopold Count	„ 4	Stauffer, Karl	15

GERMAN SECTION—continued.

Stuck, Franz	Plate 10	Ubbelohde, Otto	Plate 7
Thoma, Hans	„ 3	Wolff, Heinrich	„ 14
Ubbelohde, Otto	2

AUSTRIAN SECTION.

Cossmann, Alfred	Plate 3	Orlik, Emil	Plate 7
Cossmann, Alfred	„ 4	Orlik, Emil	„ 8
Cossmann, Alfred	„ 5	Schmutzer, Ferdinand	2
Jettmar, Rudolph	„ 10	Schmutzer, Ferdinand	9
Lopieński, Ignaz	„ 6	Unger, William	1

HUNGARIAN SECTION.

Aranyossy, Ákos F.	Plate 4	Raüscher, Lajos	Plate 3
Landsinger, Zsigmond	„ 9	Raüscher, Lajos	„ 7
Landsinger, Zsigmond	„ 10	Székely, Árpád	5
Olgyai, Viktor	„ 1	Székely, Árpád	8
Olgyai, Viktor	„ 2	Tahi, A.	6

DUTCH SECTION.

Bauer, M.	Plate 5	Nieuwenkamp, W. O. J.	Plate 6
Becht, Ed.	„ 9	Reicher, A. F.	„ 4
Bosch, E.	„ 11	Witsen, W.	2
Gravesande, Storm van	„ 10	Zilcken, P.	7
Houten, Miss B. G. van	„ 3	Zwart, W. de	1
Koster, A. L.	8

BELGIAN SECTION.

Baertsoen, A.	Plate 7	Maréchal, F	Plate 10
Cassiers, H.	„ 1	Meunier, H.	„ 5
Coppens, O.	„ 9	Romberg, M.	4
Danse, A.	„ 2	Rysselberghe, T. van	11
Gailliard, F.	„ 3	Titz, L.	8
Khnopff, Fernand	„ 13	Wytsman, R.	6
Laermans, E.	12

DANISH SECTION.

• Frölich, Lorenz	Plate 10	Lünd, Soren	Plate 11
Hansen, H. N.	„ 3	Mönsted, Peter	„ 7
Houø, Axel	„ 2	Niss, Thorvald	4
Krause, E.	„ 9	Schwartz, Frants	12
Kroyer, P. S.	„ 1	Schwartz, Frants	13
Locher, Carl	„ 5	Skovgaard, Niels	8
Lübschitz, J.	6

NORWEGIAN AND FINNISH SECTION.

Edelfelt, A.	Plate 8	Sparre, Count Louis	Plate 5
Edelfelt, A.	„ 10	Sparre, Count Louis	„ 9
Flodin, Hilda	„ 4	Thesleff, Ellen	3
Flodin, Hilda	„ 6	Zorn, Anders L.	1
Gallén, A.	„ 7	Zorn, Anders L.
Nordhagen, J.	11

ITALIAN SECTION.

Beltrami, Luca	Plate 11	Nomellini, P.	Plate 8
Biseo, Cesare	„ 6	Savardo, Dino	„ 13
Chessa, C.	„ 2	Sezanne, Augusto	14
Fattori, G.	„ 9	Turletti, C.	12
Fortuny, Mariano, Jun.	„ 15	Vegetti, Enrico	5
Grubicy, Vittore	„ 4	Vetri, Paolo	1
Kienerk, Giorgio	„ 10	Vitalini, Francesco
Miti-Zanetti, G.	7

SWISS SECTION.

Amiet, Cuno	Plate 8	Muyden, E. van	Plate
Beaumont, Pauline de	„ 4	Muyden, E. van	„ 3
Burnand, Eugène	„ 10	Piguet, R.	6
Forel, Alexis	„ 9	Ravel, Edouard	7
Muyden, E. van	„ 1	Vallet, E.	5

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN GREAT BRITAIN. BY A. L. BALDRY.

N exact definition of etching is not easy. In the narrowest sense of the term it would presumably be limited only to work which is scratched with a pointed tool upon a metal plate, to line drawings upon copper which, when rubbed with ink, will give an impression on paper. If this definition is accepted, there are but two kinds of etching, that in which the lines made by the point are deepened and strengthened by being bitten in with an acid which will eat away the copper, and that known as "dry-point," in which there is no accentuation of the lines by the use of the acid. From plates treated in either of these ways prints can be obtained which have characteristic technical qualities and reproduce exactly the original touches of the tool; and these prints are probably entitled to be regarded as illustrations of the purest form of the etcher's art.

BUT it is questionable whether it is quite permissible to draw so sharp a line between etching and other kinds of engraving. There are processes allied to it which differ from it only in minor details, and there are others in which it actually plays some part in producing the final result. It is better to make the definition as broad and comprehensive as possible, and not to insist upon distinctions which only hamper the etcher's activity. That the workers themselves desire full freedom to express their ideas in any way that suits them best is proved by the readiness of the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers to encourage all forms of engraving which give opportunities for the display of originality of invention and accomplishment. One of the rules of this society declares that "all forms of engraving on metal, whether by the burin, the etching-needle, by mezzotint or aquatint, or by whatever other form (of engraving) the artist may choose as a means of original expression, are understood to be included in the term 'painter-etching.'" This inclusiveness is no doubt due in some measure to the anxiety of an exhibiting association to make its shows attractive and varied, but it comes also from an obvious desire on the part of the artists themselves to be allowed a free choice as to the particular technical method which will best interpret them.

INDEED, if such a society, founded professedly to develop the art of etching and to popularise it among all lovers of interesting accomplishment, were to attempt any exact regulation of executive processes, it would lose the greater part of its authority and would practically destroy its right to existence. Its real mission, which it seems from the first to have judiciously recognised, is to gather together all men who take an intelligent view of their artistic responsibilities and to bestow approval upon all types of production which are plainly inspired by a legitimate desire to break away from the beaten track. To ignore anything which bore the stamp of serious originality would be as mistaken a piece of policy as to extend encouragement to mechanical and commercial substitutes for the artist's work. Every man who has something fresh to say is entitled to a hearing ; it would be foolish to try and silence him because he does not use exactly the same idioms as his predecessors, or because he happens to have hit upon an idea which had not occurred to them.

OF all the experts who have given an opinion on the question of terminology, perhaps the most catholic in his views is Professor von Herkomer. He declared, in one of the lectures which he delivered during his tenure of the Slade Professorship at Oxford, that he is disposed to apply the term "etching" to every form of work on metal, whether bitten with acid or indented with a burin or needle, so long as this work in its character strictly represents the freest expression of an artistic nature. He would make the distinction between what is and what is not properly called étyhing a matter of æsthetic sentiment rather than of technical manner, and he would exclude from the category of etchings all laboriously wrought plates, even though the methods of working followed in them might conform absolutely to executive precedents. At the same time he admitted that there is no measurement and there are no rules by which the right thing can be recognised off-hand. Personal feeling must necessarily play an important part in the guidance of the men who practise this subtle art, and it must equally have a supreme influence over people who are honestly anxious to understand what may be the type of production that has the strongest claim upon their appreciation. Of course there can be no precise standard if so much scope is allowed to individual conviction, and inevitably there must be conflicts of taste on many more or less vital questions, but there is in these very conflicts something stimulating and encouraging to the active mind.

British

IF we accept, as a basis for argument, the Professor's broad statement as to the comprehensiveness of etching and adopt his standpoint with regard to the functions of the art, it may fairly be said that there is within the artist's reach no executive device which is at the same time capable of giving so much enjoyment to producer and observer, and so full of exciting possibilities. The etcher's successes, the achievements of a man who has secured for once an absolute agreement between mind and hand, are exquisite things which will fascinate every intelligent thinker, because the process by which they have been brought into existence is one that allows the most complete realisation of great imaginative ideas. It abounds with subtleties which are infinitely suggestive to the possessor of the true artistic temperament, and it will lead him on to heights of expression unattainable by any other mode of practice. So many ways of arriving at his results are, moreover, open to him that he need never fear that he will be hampered by the unresponsiveness of the medium; the limitations which he has to fear are those of his own personality; nothing will check his progress more than any inability on his part to perceive the direction in which he should turn in his striving after success.

BUT, at the same time, etching in all its form is an uncertain art, or rather it is uncertain when it is used by an artist who is ambitious. If its processes are made mechanical and kept in regular sequence by a code of rules, it will give only mechanical results which will satisfy no one but the man who is cursed with commonplace instincts and an unimaginative nature. It will cease to be spontaneous and will become merely mannered and pedantically correct, losing thereby some of its noblest qualities and gaining nothing but an aspect of superficial completeness. In the hands, however, of an artist who willingly risks failures in the hope that he may achieve something of memorable importance it is capable of endless surprises, for it will vary strangely in response to his moods. Its results may be fantastic, exaggerated, contrary to all precedent, but even when they are obviously wrong, they will be neither tame nor stupid, and when they are right they will probably be exquisitely attractive. At least they will never have the smug and soulless perfection of mechanism which the unaspiring craftsman is content to attain.

THE reasons for this uncertainty are to be sought partly in the temperament of the etcher, and partly in the technical complexities of the art itself. The first essential for success is enthusiasm, a love of the work for its own sake, and a resolve to be daunted by no difficulties that may arise to hamper the worker's progress. The enthusiast, when the fit is on him, will attack cheerfully the most complicated problems, and will triumph over them by sheer brilliance of inspiration and strength of will, but even a momentary slackening of his determination, or the slightest yielding to a feeling of discouragement, will suffice to put him hopelessly off the right track and to involve him in a maze of perplexities from which there is no escape. Even when his enthusiasm is at its highest, there may come difficulties which he cannot surmount, and he has to confess himself beaten. Some etchers, indeed, profess to regard their art as one that is made up of accidents, happy and unhappy, and to find its very unexpectedness a source of delight. But such an attitude towards it is a little too fanciful; there is beyond doubt a very considerable amount of knowledge of its peculiarities to be obtained by serious study, and there are many practical details which can be reduced to order by a man who makes reasonably methodical investigations. How he applies his practical knowledge must, of course, depend upon himself. If he is of a wavering temperament and inclined to stray about, he may meet with more than a fair proportion of accidents, but if he has a passably stable disposition he will know well enough what lapse in his own judgment has caused him to fail, or what keying up of his nervous energies has brought success within his grasp.

IF, then, the personality of the etcher has so much to do with the character of the plates that he executes, it is possible to give the English school credit for the possession of an unusual number of members who are liberally endowed with the right mental qualities. During the last few years there has been produced in this country a very considerable amount of etched work which satisfies all the necessary conditions of spontaneity, originality and sympathy with nature, and has besides a large measure of admirable technical strength. Some of this work is worthy to rank with the best that has come from any school, much of it is decidedly above the average, and even among those examples which have to be reckoned as failures there is unquestionable evidence of well-intentioned effort to avoid the easier commonplaces that content the mere journeyman engraver. Of course the good things have to be sifted out of a mass of stuff which makes no pretence of being original in even a minor degree, but quite enough of them can be found to repay the trouble of investigation.

ONE excellent point which must be noted about our native school at its best is that it covers a very wide ground. The variety of invention which is shown by the men who belong to it, and their readiness to seize upon all kinds of material that seems susceptible of artistic treatment, are worthy of the highest praise. They do not merely follow in the track of one or two masters, nor are they content simply to repeat what others have done; their obvious desire is to give fair play to their own independence of thought and their particular individualities of expression. Even those etchers who plainly reflect the practice of the teachers from whom they received their grounding of technical knowledge show in a number of cases that they are capable of giving new readings of the facts that they have learned. Generally, indeed, there is to be perceived a wholesome spirit of originality which, despite occasional aberrations, has called into existence an array of sound and interesting works of art illustrating with complete adequacy most of the worthier applications of the craft of etching.

British

IT is in figure drawing, perhaps, that English etchers are least successful. We have no one in this country who approaches M. Paul Helleu in graceful elegance of design and supple freedom of expression, and certainly none of our artists can be compared to him as a brilliant exponent of what is most attractive in the modern type of humanity. Nor have we a master like Mr. Anders Zorn who combines in perfect proportion certainty of draughtsmanship and masculine confidence in the use of the best devices of etching. But at least we can claim, by virtue of his long residence amongst us, M. Legros as one of our chief art leaders, and we can point to an important group of younger Englishmen who owe to his example and instruction some of the best qualities of their practice. Such artists as Mr. W. Strang, Mr. Charles Holroyd, Mr. Gascoyne, and others who were trained by M. Legros at the Slade School or at South Kensington, take high rank in this country and illustrate in their methods of working some decidedly original views about the application of æsthetic principles.

THEN there is another group of the pupils and followers of Professor von Herkomer, which includes several of the most prominent of present-day workers in various forms of engraving. The Professor himself, by his own performances as an etcher and a mezzotinter, and by his invention of a process of "plate painting," which makes possible the exact reproduction of an artist's own handiwork, has earned an indisputable right to be reckoned as one of the most versatile and capable masters of the craft, and by his ability as a teacher he has made upon the art of this country a mark which can never be effaced. He has done much to simplify the complicated processes of etching by ingenious adaptations of the older technicalities; he has devised various short cuts to results which were previously attainable only by prolonged and often uncertain labour ; and he has imparted to others a full share of his well-directed and intelligent enthusiasm. From these two groups is coming annually a great deal that is very significant and decidedly promising artistically.

INDEED, though there are among the etchers of figure subjects only a few who are entitled to be placed in the first rank, the list of capable craftsmen who deserve to be seriously considered is by no means a small one, and it is in its way thoroughly representative. There are Mr. Mortimer Menpes, Mr. Jacomb Hood, Mr. R. W. Macbeth, Mr. D. A. Wehrschmidt, Mr. Norman Hirst, Mr. A. W. Bayes, Mr. George Roller, Mr. William Hole, Miss Cormack, Mr. E. G. Hester, Mr. J. C. Webb, Mr. J. B. Pratt, Mr. Macbeth-Raeburn, and others whose understanding of different forms of engraving is displayed in a long series of plates, some original and some reproductions of pictures. Every now and again there comes from one or other of these artists something of real excellence, something to remind us that the great ideals which were respected in past generations are still being kept alive, and that the desire for admirable achievement is as active as ever.

THE number of etchers who occupy themselves principally or entirely with landscapes and studies of architectural motives is notably large, and their record is memorable for its comprehensiveness and for its revelation of true sympathy with nature. Much of the work which comes into this class is inspired by unusual understanding of refinements of line composition and by a delightful appreciation of subtleties of atmospheric effect, and is especially happy in its translation of gradations of tone and colour into suggestive black and white. What may be called the commonplace view of nature, with its exaltation of trivial detail and its neglect of decorative arrangement and fine adjustment of masses of light and dark, is not often taken by the men who can be regarded as representative of our landscape etchers. They aim by preference at a nobler treatment of the motives which they select, and if they fail it is because they chance at times to attempt what is beyond their powers of expression. Theirs is the honourable failure which can be forgiven readily enough on account of the splendid ambition which prompted the effort ; it does not come from want of courage or from a disposition to be satisfied with little things.

BUT it would not be difficult to collect instances of the fortunate realisation of really great intentions. In the work of Mr. Frank

British

Short, with his excellent draughtsmanship and sound sense of style, Mr. F. V. Burridge, with his large freedom of touch, Mr. D. Y. Cameron, Mr. E. W. Charlton, Mr. C. J. Watson, Mr. Wilfrid Ball, Mr. Thomas Huson, Mr. Alfred Hartley, Sir J. C. Robinson, Colonel Goff, Mr. R. E. J. Bush, and Sir F. Seymour Haden, the combination of sensitive study and strong expression is wholly fascinating; and a not less correct appreciation of the etcher's mission in the art world is to be credited to artists like Mr. T. Irving Dalgliesh, Mr. Fred Slocombe, Mr. J. G. Murray, Mr. Oliver Baker, Mr. Alfred East, Mr. John Finnie, Mr. Arthur Robertson, Mr. Lawrence B. Phillips, Mr. F. Laing, Miss C. M. Pott, Mr. H. Van Raalte, Mr. T. T. Rowe, Miss C. G. Copeman, Mr. David Waterson, Miss M. A. Sloane, Mr. H. R. Robertson, Miss M. Bolingbroke, Mr. F. W. Goolden, Miss C. M. Nichols, Mr. W. Kiddier, and Mr. Joseph Knight. Then there are men like Mr W. Hole and M. Legros, who handle landscapes and figure-subjects with almost equal power. In all directions can be found good things which are worthy of attention from all students of contemporary art history and from all lovers of unaffected and earnest endeavour.

IT is an encouraging sign that there should be now among the members of the English school a widespread belief in the importance of a generous interpretation of the technical responsibility of the etcher. Every worker is at liberty to choose the mode of practice that suits best his point of view and will aid him most satisfactorily to convey his impression of nature to other people. He is not rigidly bound down to observe narrow rules, and he need not fear that he will be denied recognition because he is impatient of all restrictions likely to limit his freedom of expression. Many of the older conventions have disappeared, and with them the pedantic insistence upon the idea that every one who might have the will and the ability to strike out for himself a new way apart from the beaten track must necessarily be a heretic and an unbeliever. This widening of opportunity has not, however, led to anything like extravagance. The sincerity of the better type of artists who practise the craft is quite beyond question; they have not relaxed in the smallest degree their respect for Nature's authority, and plainly they value their freedom most because it helps them to realise something of her infinite variety.

A. L. BALDRY.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

British

"IN WEST PRINCE'S STREET GARDENS, EDINBURGH." FROM THE ETCHING BY
SUSAN F. CRAWFORD, A.R.E.

PLATE 3—"A ROADWAY IN FLANDERS"

FROM THE ETCHING BY MARY A. SLOANE, A.R.E.

PLATE 4—"THE SLIPWAY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY E. W. CHARLTON, A.R.E.

British

"STUDY OF AN ARAB HEAD." FROM THE HERKOMERGRAVURE BY PRO-FESSOR H. VON HERKOMER, R.A.

PLATE 5

PLATE 6—"WILD WEATHER"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY PROFESSOR H. VON HERKOMER, R.A.

PLATE 7—"IN THE FURROWED LAND"

FROM THE ETCHING BY MINNA BOLINGBROKE, R.E.

Art

Art

collage — Herkimer

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 10—"THE CLOUD"

FROM THE MEZZOTINT BY JOSEPH KNIGHT, R.I., R.E.

PLATE 11—"AN ESSEX STREAM"

FROM THE ETCHING BY ALFRED HARTLEY, R.E.

"WESTMINSTER ABBEY." FROM THE ETCHING BY AXEL HERMAN HAIG, R.E.

British

“EVENING, MOUSEHOLE HARBOUR” FROM THE ETCHING BY REGINALD
E. J. BUSH, A.R.E.

“STUDY OF A HEAD”
PLATE 14

BY REGINALD E. J. BUSH, A.R.E.

“SUNRISE”

PLATE 15

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY ALFRED EAST, A.R.A.

“SUNSET”

FROM

HERSCHEL

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

“THE BOAT-BUILDER’S SHOP, RYE.” FROM
THE ETCHING BY H. B. VAN RAALTE, A.R.E.
PLATE 19

"THE PHILOSOPHER." FROM
THE DRY-POINT BY H. B. VAN
RAALTE, A.R.E.

"NIGHT." A DRY-POINT
STUDY OF A HEAD BY CHARLES HOLROYD, R.E.

PLATE 23—"STUDY OF FIR TREES"

FROM THE ETCHING BY J. G. MURRAY, A.R.E.

PLATE 24—"STUDY OF TREES—SPRING"

FROM THE ETCHING BY HUGH PATON, A.R.E.

PLATE 25—"STREET IN LUDLOW"

FROM THE ETCHING BY OLIVER BAKER, R.E.

PLATE 26—"THE VILLA D'ESTE, TIVOLI"

FROM THE ETCHING BY ARTHUR ROBERTSON, A.R.E.

“GUN AND SHOT WHARF, SOUTH-WARK.” FROM THE ETCHING BY
CONSTANCE M. POTT, R.E.

“LANCASTER FROM THE MARSH.” FROM THE ETCHING BY FRED BURRIDGE, R.E.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 30—"ON THE MOORS"

FROM THE MEZZOTINT BY A. C. MEYER, A.R.E.
(By permission of the Publishers, Messrs. Frost and Reed, Bristol)

PLATE 31—"WHITBY HARBOUR"

FROM THE ETCHING BY FRED W. GOOLDEN

"THE SMITHY." FROM THE ETCHING
BY D. Y. CAMERON, R.E.

"ROSLIN." FROM THE ETCHING BY D. Y. CAMERON, R.E.

PLATE 34—"EVERY LITTLE HELPS A LITTLE" FROM THE ETCHING BY CONSTANCE G. COPEMAN, A.R.E.

PLATE 35—"A BEND IN A MOUNTAIN STREAM" FROM THE MEZZOTINT BY JOHN FINNIE, R.E.
(By permission of the Publishers, Messrs. Frost and Reed, Bristol)

PLATE 36—"THE LITTLE COPSE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY DAVID WATERSON, A.R.E.

PLATE 37—"A PIPING SHEPHERD"

FROM THE MEZZOTINT BY DAVID WATERSON, A.R.E.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 39—"DRIZZLE"

DRAWN, ETCHED, AND ENGRAVED BY THOMAS HUSON, R.E.

PLATE 40—"THE HILL SIDE"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY T. IRVING DALGLIESH, R.E.

THE MOUNTAIN MAKING

500

WATCHING BY THE

PLATE 42—"BRIDLESMITH GATE, NOTTINGHAM"
FROM THE ETCHING BY TRYTHALL ROWE

PLATE 43—"A WOODLAND PATH"
FROM THE UNPUBLISHED ETCHING BY FRED SLOCOMBE, R.E.
(Copyright reserved)

PLATE 44—"ON THE WAY TO PORT"

FROM THE ETCHING BY WILLIAM KIDDIER

PLATE 45—"OLD BATTERSEA BRIDGE"

FROM THE AQUATINT BY FRANK SHORT, R.E.

British

“A DOCKYARD ON THE THAMES”
FROM THE ETCHING BY FRANK BRANGWYN

PLATE 46

PLATE 47—"THE KING"

FROM THE ETCHING BY HERBERT DICKSEE, R.E.
(By permission of the Publishers, Messrs. Frost and Reed, Bristol)

PLATE 48—"ON THE GRAND CANAL, VENICE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY L. B. PHILLIPS, A.R.E.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

"PORTRAITS OF THE LATE CECIL RHODES." FROM THE ETCHINGS
BY MORTIMER MENPES, R.E.

PLATE 50

“NINEBARROW DOWN, ISLE OF PURBECK, LOOKING OUT TOWARDS ST. ALDHELM’S HEAD.” FROM THE ETCHING BY SIR J. C. ROBINSON, R.E.

“BURY, NEAR AMBERLEY.” FROM THE ETCHING BY WILFRID BALL, R.E.

“TYNE LIGHTHOUSES.” FROM
THE ETCHING BY JOHN CASH
PLATE 53

"A STREET IN PERUGIA." FROM
THE ETCHING BY R. G. REASON

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN AMERICA. BY WILL JENKINS.

THE many and varied artistic possibilities of line have each year been more intelligently practised by the American artist and better appreciated by the general public, and a brilliant school of wood engravers followed by a yet more brilliant school of pen draughtsmen whose work has appeared in well printed periodicals of large circulation, has produced a better public taste and a rapidly increasing interest in the graphic arts.

A DEFINITE revival of interest in etching means a move towards raising the standard of public taste by a wider diffusion of things of real beauty and of sufficient monetary value to prompt a careful consideration of their merits. Again, a good etching besides being a thing of beauty is always an intellectual treat; it is so "autographic," so closely characterised by the artist's actual touch that the student of it is almost able to feel the charm of the studio circle and to understand something of such a subtle atmosphere.

MR. WHISTLER has said that "in Art it is criminal to go beyond the means used in its exercise." This is a canon which he has not only preached but conscientiously practised, and by so doing he has exerted very great influence on the work of American etchers. Many-sided worker and enthusiast, he has by sheer virtuosity, coupled with nobility of conception and conscientiously serious aims, triumphantly reached and maintained a higher position as an etcher than any artist of his time. He has not reached his position without opposition. It has been given to few modern artists to meet such unfair and bitter criticism from the highest in authority (at one time in England) as he has in years past had to battle against. Now happily his greatness is fully acknowledged, and no modern artist can justly claim so many appreciative and devoted admirers. He has earnestly striven with the greatest devotion to his ideals, unhampered by weakness of conception or lack of power, to express the full realisation of any message he has desired to impart. To the artist or connoisseur his works are the highest examples of lofty purpose and graceful poetic expression in modern etching. Equally versatile as painter, etcher or lithographer, he seizes with supreme and masterly grace the innermost character of his subjects, and powerfully projects his statements with invariable refinement and by the most economical and effective means. He is sometimes almost epigrammatic in his manner of saying so much with so few lines or touches, and his work glows with the dramatic intensity of rich masses. It is now more than forty years since the "French Series"—The Cabaret, The Unsafe Tenement, and others—were followed by the better known "Thames Series," each plate of which is a veritable gem of "portraiture" of the picturesque river subjects of that time. These first groups, masterly as they are, were but the beginning of the most remarkable number of plates produced by any modern etcher, to which year by year he has added something from many and diverse motives. Shipping, buildings, figures, portraits, canals, docks, streets of London, Paris, Venice, Holland, Belgium, or the French Provinces, have all been subject to the magic of his touch. The total number of pages here available for American work would not afford sufficient space for even a briefly annotated catalogue of his important achievements in etching, to say nothing of the other branches of art in which he has with so much distinction exerted his personality. Happily he is to-day as vigorous and as active a force in art as ever. IN the foremost group of American painter-etchers stands the work of Charles A. Platt. Distinguished alike for vigorous brilliancy and richness of effects, it shows that he has every variety of technical means at his disposal, and is a master of each in some special way. Exceptionally gifted with versatility, he has employed his skill in many different directions.

STEPHEN PARRISH is an etcher whose work teems with interest regardless of the particular subject dealt with. Whether he is rendering the clear sunlight of Pennsylvania or the deeper notes of the lower Canadian Provinces, his style is always full of interest and rich in every line and mass. No American's work shows more forcibly how their country abounds in good subjects. There is a certain paucity of native subject in the work of most American painters and etchers, probably due to lack of example such as the European artist has constantly at his elbow. If the European be painting this or that phase of a landscape, he can with little trouble study masterly examples and traditions of how to solve his problems. He may see how Daubigny did this or Rousseau that; how carefully Constable studied the various stages of the growth of a tree from month to month throughout the seasons, or with what decisive strength he painted a cloud form or a bit of foreground. The American etchers have had to look for technical example in work

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

JOSEPH PENNELL has not only shown his ability as an etcher, but also as a writer. As a black-and-white draughtsman few men have equalled his output for the past twenty years. At the last Paris Exhibition the only gold medal of the 1st class awarded in the American section fell to him as an etcher.

MRS. ANNA LEA MERRITT first attained distinction as a portrait painter, and afterwards as the writer of the life of her late husband, Henry Merritt, artist and author. She turned her attention to etching as a means suited to the illustration of her own work. She has executed many charming plates, principally portraits of distinguished men and women of the time, with an occasional plate of river scenery, landscape, or interpretations of her own paintings. Her vigorous portraits of Miss Ellen Terry and a large head of Mr. Leslie Stephen are striking examples of good etching.

ELLEN OAKFORD has done much that is good in landscape etching ; strong in tonality, her work has much of the subtle glowing charm of moist growth and outdoor atmosphere. More of an exponent of painty masses than of flowing, sparkling lines, her work is always satisfying and charming in its own especial way.

ESSENTIALLY a practitioner of the brilliant uses of line, the work of Edith Loring Getchell is vigorous, original and effective without affectation. She has practised dry-point with much success, and found her motives in Holland and France, as well as in her own New England scenery. Her hand is particularly sympathetic to all that is beautiful in foliation and growth of trees, atmospheric or climatic conditions of light, and those subtleties of nature best adapted to expression with the point.

D. SHAW MACLAUGHLAN is an accomplished young artist who first studied in the usual academic courses, but has found in the art of etching a form of expression far more suited to his artistic bent. Deeply conscious of the towering greatness of Rembrandt, Durer and the older masters of line, he has set himself the task of learning all in his power of the good that appeals to him in the works of such great men. It follows that such devoted enthusiasm to an ideal is bound to produce good work; Mr. MacLaughlan has proved this already by his many charming and vigorously original plates. A well-known exhibitor both in America and Europe, honours and medals have already begun to come to him. In such an accomplished artist and conscientious student of good etching, great things may be expected from his clever hand in the years to come.

ARTHUR A. LEWIS is another young artist who is devoting his talents to the best ideals of pure etching. Strong in his use of line, he is also most happy in achieving a velvety richness in his work with very conscientious and clever style in his composition. He is particularly happy with figure subjects. Keenly grasping all the essentials, he draws them with charming grace and striking originality of style. GEORGE C. AID strikes a modern, graceful note in his work, permeated with much artistic thought and sympathy with nature. A thorough student of his art, he has most consistently studied the subject, and practises with conviction and much promise for the future. IT is not surprising that so talented a water-colour painter and illustrator as Sidney R. Burleigh should turn his hand to etching with conspicuous success. With unusual refinement of draughtsmanship and brilliancy of handling such as he possesses in all mediums, Mr. Burleigh might be among the foremost of American etchers.

American

CHARLES W. STETSON is an artist who is exceptionally gifted with individuality and power as a colourist. More strongly imaginative than most men of his school, whatever he touches is at once marked with those indescribable qualities which make such works stand alone. He is voted a "genius" among his friends, and so he is ; no school, no teaching, nothing but a natural fund of deep originality, can do what he has done with rich, deep, glowing, radiant colour.

THE late Thomas Hovenden, who reached such a prominent position as a painter of American genre, practised etching with much success. Essentially an exponent of character, his figure plates were always handled with both breadth and richness of detail.

JULIAN RIX as an etcher has done many clever plates, always handled with much fertility of line expression and with sympathy for tone and rich colour.

W. C. BAUER is strong in his grasp of landscape drawing in all its different phases. Dignified in composition, with an intimate knowledge of his subjects, his plates are always seriously managed and pleasing in final effects.

OTIS WEBBER'S work, rich in tonality, is handled with a sympathetic line well expressing the different moods of nature.

C. F. W. MEILATZ possesses a power of rendering a great variety of subject-matter with success. Bulk and masses of architecture, characteristics of streets, people and buildings, he sets down always with grace and conviction.

THE late W. Goodrich Beal was most accomplished in his landscape plates ; every tree, rock, hillside, cloud, or bit of foreground found conscientious consideration from him as to its placing, size, relation and character. His compositions were always managed with a keen grasp of the relation of all the parts to his motive.

J. A. S. MONKS has done excellent work with the etching needle. A brilliant painter of landscape, sheep and cattle, his etchings are based on solid knowledge and are handled with skill and taste.

EDMUND H. GARRETT, painter, author, illustrator, and designer, has devoted himself to etching as a means of illustrating a certain beautiful series of books, and has achieved his purpose with marked artistic ability.

R. SWAIN GIFFORD has done many excellent plates, as has also J. D. Smillie, who has successfully devoted his ability to many processes—line, soft ground, aquatint, mezzotint, and dry-point. One of the classes at the National Academy is employed in etching from life under his able direction.

THOSE excellent painters, Robert Blum and W. Chase, are both accomplished etchers, but have produced nothing recently.

ROBERT F. BLOODGOOD has done some very artistic plates, two of which he was good enough to contribute to this number. These, together with one by E. H. Garrett, it was found impossible to reproduce satisfactorily, and they were regretfully omitted. That clever marine painter, Carlton Chapman, also sent some excellent things, as did Frederick W. Freer and J. A. S. Monks, all of which unfortunately arrived too late to be included.

IT is not possible to include here the names of all those who might justly claim mention under the title of American etchers, neither would it serve any definite purpose to do so. The following artists, in addition to those already mentioned, have been more or less prominent as etchers at various times in the past decade, and their examples and teachings will be a powerful influence towards the revival of this art, a revival which now seems more possible than was the case a few years ago.

J. M. GAUGENGIGL, Alfred Brennan, J. W. Twachtman, Charles Corwin, C. A. Vanderhoof, Bernard Walter Priestman, George L. Brown, T. W. Wood, J. M. Falconer, F. S. Church, H. Farrer, J. C. Nicoll, F. Dielman, H. P. Share, Walter Saterlee, Otto Schneider, B. Lauder, Hamilton Hamilton, Ernest Haskell, James S. King, J. Lauber, Samuel Coleman, Frank Waller, C. Volkmar, Ernest C. Post, C. A. Walker, Charles H. Woodbury, H. D. Murphy, W. G. Glackens, W. H. H. Bicknell, Frank Bicknell, Sidney Smith, H. R. Blaney, G. G. McCutcheon, Frank Waller, G. D. Clements, Elliot Dangerfield, Katherine Lewin, W. H. Skelton, J. Fagin, Krausman Van-Elten, J. J. Calaghan, J. G. L. Ferris, Frank M. Gregory, J. F. Sabin, W. St. J. Harper, Stephen J. Ferris, Herman Hyneman, W. E. Marshall, C. F. Kimball, Eric Pape, and R. Coxe.

WILL JENKINS.

"TRAGHETTO." FROM THE ETCHING BY JAMES MCNEILL WHISTLER.

“CAMEO NO. 1.” FROM THE ETCHING BY J. MCNEILL
WHISTLER

PLATE 3—"A WINTRY EVENING"

FROM THE ETCHING BY W. C. BAUER
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

PLATE 4—"TWILIGHT"

FROM THE ETCHING BY ELLEN OAKFORD
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 6—"LIDO, VENICE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY OTTO H. BACKER

PLATE 7—"THE HOUR OF REST"

FROM THE ETCHING BY PETER MORAN
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

“A STORM-BOUND COAST.” FROM THE ETCHING BY THOMAS MORAN

(By permission of Mr. C. Klachner)

“NEAR STAMFORD, CONNECTICUT.” FROM THE ETCHING BY W. L. LATHROP

PLATE 9

(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

"SOLITUDE." FROM THE ETCHIN
BY CHARLES WALTER STETSON
PLATE 10

PLATE II—"ST. SULPICE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY D. SHAW MACLAUGHLAN

PLATE I2—"THE CANAL, ROTTERDAM"

FROM THE ETCHING BY GEORGE C. AID

"CHELSEA." FROM THE ETCHING
BY JOSEPH PENNELL

(By permission of Mr. Frederick Keppel)

PLATE 14—"AN EBB TIDE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY OTIS S. WEBER
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

PLATE 15—"AUTUMN ON THE PASSAIC RIVER"

FROM THE ETCHING BY JULIAN RIX
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 17—"STUDY OF A HEAD"
FROM THE ETCHING BY SYDNEY RICHMOND BURLEIGH

PLATE 18—"ON THE MERRIMAC"

FROM THE ETCHING BY THE LATE W. GOODRICH BEAL
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

PLATE 19—PORTRAIT OF LOUIS AGASSIZ
FROM THE ETCHING BY ANNA LEA MERRITT

PLATE 20—"A FISHERMAN'S FORTUNE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY EDITH L. GETCHELL
(By permission of Mr. C. Klackner)

PLATE 21—"DESDEMONA'S HOUSE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY FRANK DUVECK

PLATE 22—"WILLIAMSBURG"

FROM THE ETCHING BY CHARLES A. PLATT

“THE MARKET SLIP, ST. JOHN, N.B., AT EBB TIDE.” FROM THE ETCHING
BY CHARLES A. PLATT

(By permission of Mr. Frederick Keppel)

PLATE 24—"A PORTRAIT STUDY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY ARTHUR A. LEWIS

PLATE 25—"THE DEWEY ARCH, NEW YORK"

FROM THE ETCHING BY C. F. W. MIELATZ

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN FRANCE. BY GABRIEL MOUREY.

LURING the past few years engraving on metal in France has been going through an evolution analogous to that in lithography. Etching in colour is gradually and almost entirely replacing, in the esteem of connoisseurs, etching strictly so-called, dry-point etching in monochrome, and the work done with the burin or graver. Nor has it been otherwise with lithography; public taste has recently veered round to drawings on stone, of which the more or less audacious, and more or less rich polychromatic effects, constitute the sole merit, so that the studies in monochrome of a Steinlen or a Willette impress many as belonging to a time long gone by.

IN the course of two articles on Coloured Etchings in France, which appeared in "The Studio" for February and March 1901, I endeavoured to define in a few words the different methods followed in the technique of this special branch of art. May I be permitted to revert here to a question interesting for so many reasons not only to artists themselves but to connoisseurs and collectors? I was, moreover, at considerable pains to make the information I gave last year complete, by addressing myself to the man who is best acquainted in France, if not in the whole of Europe, with the secrets of etching in colour. I allude to Eugene Delâtre, the engraver and printer, son of Auguste Delâtre, of whom Castagnary justly said that if he had lived at the time of Rembrandt, that great etcher would not have had to take impressions of his engravings himself; Auguste Delâtre, to whom Félicien Rops wrote that curious treatise on Gravure au vernis mou, or etching on a soft ground, which serves as an appendix to his Eau-forte, Pointe-Sèche et Vernis mou (etching, dry-point, and soft-ground etching), which every etcher or engraver ought to read.

M. EUGENE DELÂTRE was, with M. Charles Maurin, one of the first engravers to yield to the fascination of etching in colour; he it is who has struck off the greater number of etchings in colour which have so far appeared, for at the present day artists who print their own etchings are quite in the minority.

THERE are three distinct processes of etching in colour. In the first only one plate is used, the colour is laid on in the manner known as à la poupée,* and the number of impressions that may be taken is practically illimitable.

IN the second process two plates are used, one for the outline and the shadows, the other for the colour or colours, care being taken to print from the plate with the colour first, and that with the outline and shadows last.

IN the third process one plate is required for each colour, and as many impressions are taken as there are plates; but I was told by M. Delâtre that with four plates every combination of colour can be obtained.

THERE still remains the so-called monotype process, which is, as is well known, a painting on metal, generally on copper, which is passed through the press before the colour is completely dry. It would appear that monotypes can also be produced on zinc. The drawing is done with lithographic chalk, and similar colouring is used as in etching in colour à la poupée. The chalk drawing can only bear the taking of five or six impressions at the most, for the outlines become more and more effaced in each proof.

FOR reasons which will be readily appreciated I will not dwell longer on these technical questions. Those who actually practise any craft have, of course, an experience impossible to an outsider, and the critic who pretends to bring his personal opinion to bear on the subject, lays himself open to a charge of pedantry. And after all what do the processes employed matter? it is the results which count, the results which speak for themselves, and it is our mission to state what those results are. The art of the engraver is indeed of all the graphic arts the most involved in mystery, the most unique, and, at the same time, on account of its infinite resources, the most wide reaching in its results. What a gulf yawns between the style of a Méryon and a Gaillard, a Lepère and a Rops, a Jacquemart and a Whistler, a Braquemond and a Helleu. "Men achieve good results," says Félicien Rops in the letter to Auguste Delâtre, alluded to above, "by the use of the most diverse, the most opposite means. That which suits one will not suit another. I think much the same may be said of all dogmas, academic formulæ and recipes for success as the dictum of a celebrated doctor, who, after giving it due trial, declared of a remedy for cholera that it was excellent for masons but utterly bad for cabinet makers."

AMONGST the engravers who have devoted themselves most exclu-

* The poupée or doll is a bunch of rags used in this process.

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

HELLEU is as ever the fascinating wielder of the diamond-point whom we all know so well, the masterly interpreter of the grace and elegance of the fashionable woman of the day. We are never weary of admiring him, for he is always, as has been justly said, equal to himself; nay, even superior to himself. What could be more exquisite than his recent studies of the Duchess of M——, one of the great ladies of the English aristocracy, especially that of La Duchesse de M—— Endormie, with her favourite fox terrier on her knees; or, to quote another example, the study of Mme. Madeleine C——, full of typically Parisian distinction; or, again, that most admirable scene of maternal affection, Jean Helleu embrassé par sa Mère, and Les Saxons, which is a fitting pendant to the celebrated dry-point called the Dessins de Watteau au Louvre.

GREAT indeed and full of strange fascination is the contrast when we turn from Helleu to consider the work of Steinlen, full as it is of profound melancholy, even tragedy; for, with his deep insight into the life of the people of Paris, he transports us into the very atmosphere of the faubourgs, revealing the vice and misery underlying the brilliant society of the capital.

STEINLEN is, in my opinion, especially successful in his etchings in black and white. His Amoureux de Village, Pauvre Hère, Le Bouge, Rentrée du Travail, A Concert in the Street, and certain of his landscapes, such as the Effet de Soleil couchant sur un Pont, are especially noteworthy, so full are they of entrancing charm. These etchings, in fact, simply palpitate with truth and emotion; their drawing and composition are alike excellent.

VERY different in style, but equally sincere in their interpretation of nature, are the engravings of the Dutchman, M. P. Dupont, who resides in Paris, and on that account has a right with the Armenian, M. Chahine, to be noticed here.

M. DUPONT has assimilated the technique of the German masters in engraving of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries with rare skill and intelligence, but at the same time he has given a thoroughly personal impress to his own work. Except for one Amsterdam scene, the Groote Toren, I have scarcely seen anything of his but studies of horses—all strong dray or farm animals—notably The Fallen Horse, L'Outillage, and the Cheval mangeant. In them the artist has shown himself thoroughly in touch with his subjects, interpreting in each case expression, gesture, attitude—in a word the special ego of every one of his models with a really touching tenderness; for his horses, whether in the open country or on the quays of Paris, are full of individual life and character. M. Dupont is, in fact, an artist of the first rank and his name deserves to be remembered.

French

IN his etchings in black and white and in colour Charles Huard continues to interpret with great success the life of fisher folk, sailors, old country women, and other types of provincial life, observing their peculiarities with infinite care. His Vieille Femme reprisant près d'une fenêtre and In the Snow at Bel-Air are amongst the best of his signed works.

M. GASTON EY'CHENNE has also produced some studies of animals which are really little masterpieces. His La Carpe, Papillon jaune, and Petite Panthère are specially noteworthy. He is a thorough lover of delicate and subtle effects of colour, an earnest student of nature, and everything from his hand has a permanent charm of its own.—[As we go to press we have heard, with the greatest regret, of the death, at the early age of twenty-nine years, of this very talented and sympathetic artist.—EDITOR.]

M. CHARLES HOUDARD confines himself more and more strictly as time goes on to the effects of sunset, in which he has attained such wonderful richness of colouring.

M. MULLER is an artist of considerable power and versatility. His portraits of actresses, especially that of Cléo de Mérode, are very quaint. For myself, however, I prefer his Baigneuse sous les Saules; Rue St. Vincent—a winter snow effect full of force and charm—Port du Pollet, and his Promenade à Hyde Park, etchings in colour in which he has obtained effects of rare delicacy and subtle refinement.

M. CHARLES MAURIN is one of the very few artists who has attempted to treat the nude figure in the medium of etching. His morning and evening toilettes of young girls, his studies of girls or women bathing, chatting together in déshabillé in the privacy of their own rooms, and scenes from the home life of mothers and children, are full of the greatest charm. The only fault I have to find with them is that they are, perhaps, too precise in drawing and in colouring, but some few of them have all the interest of the most charming genre paintings, notably the Ruban de Coiffure, Nouvelle éducation sentimentale, Première Toilette, and the Bain de la fillette.

M. MANUEL ROBBE possesses in the very highest degree the same mastery of technique as M. Charles Maurin, but he is less perfect as a draughtsman. Some of his signed proofs are full of incomparable charm, especially, in my opinion, those in which there is the least colour—La critique, for instance, in which a young woman is standing in a delightful pose in front of an easel. The Dame à la chaise longue also pleases me greatly. The versatility of M. Robbe's talent is just as clearly displayed as in his scenes of intimate home life in his landscapes with figures, such as the Marché à Montmartre, Dans le Parc, Lever de Lune, the Vieil Arbre, and Aux champs, all fine renderings of typical outdoor subjects full of admirable effects of light. THE scenes of Parisian life of M. Richard Ranft are full of humour and imagination. In such typical works as his Marché à la Volaille and La Charrette anglaise he delights in striking schemes of colour, full of cheerful harmony.

M. FRANCIS JOURDAIN continues to seek his effects by contrasting masses of dark tone, achieving ever more striking and impressive results, but at the same time always retaining the decorative character of his work. As an etcher in colours he occupies an unique position, and I know nothing more charming than his Femme dans l'Ombre, Femme lisant, or his Femme au canapé, the last a charming study in grey and pink, relieved by the dull gold of the hair and the soft black of the velvet collar.

M. BERNARD DE MONVEL has produced little during the last year. If I am not mistaken only two plates, namely, the Bar—one of those curious studies to which he owes his celebrity—and his Before the Storm, which resembles a little too much his Haleurs, although the colouring is different.

THE plates engraved by M. Eugène Delâtre are simply perfect, so wonderfully strong is his technique. In my opinion, it would be quite impossible for any one to attain to greater delicacy, refinement, softness, and depth of tone. It is an absolute delight to turn over his series of Landscapes, vibrating with the light of early morning with the mists of the dawn still clinging to them. To cite but a few, how charming are the Entrée du Village de Saint-Julien-le-Pauvre, the Moulin de L'Épais, the Pommiers, and the Brumes sur la Sarthe. Very different, but equally striking, are the Pont Solferino, a night effect, with the lights reflected in the humid gloom of the reddish fog; and most charming are the two studies of cats, Moumoune and Marquis, whilst in the Vieille Femme aux Chats is displayed in an equal degree the wonderful insight into character and power of observation which distinguish so many fine works from the hand of M. Eugène Delâtre.

AMONGST the more recent plates of M. Jacques Villon, all of whose work bears the impress of distinction, the most pleasing are those in which he contents himself with simple effects of colour, in other words those which are the least polychromatic. Specially noticeable are his Parisienne seated in a pink armchair, with her face turned away from the spectator, the whole subject veiled in a kind of grey haze, from which emerges the exquisitely delicate and refined profile of the young girl, and that most dainty study, full of the elegance of the Second Empire, Les Premiers Beaux Jours, with the figure in the blue—such a ravishing blue—costume ; very amusing too are the plates to which the artist has given the names of the Nègre en bonne Fortune, the Cabaret de Nuit, and the Ombrelle rouge.

French

THE impressionist painter M. Dezaunay endeavours, with marked success, to give to his etchings the same freshness and brightness of colour as distinguish his canvases. His studies of Breton women, such as the Paysanne de Rosporden, the Petite mendiante de Pleyben, and the Femme et fillette de Ploogastel Daoulas, are simply delightful.

TO M. Dubuc we owe some very powerful studies in etching of sea effects. Now he renders with rare skill in his Mourillon the gleaming luminous Mediterranean, as a scintillating stretch of blue water, now he becomes tragic and grand in his Vaisseau de Guerre, a mighty man-of-war, breaking the huge waves of the ocean at night, with its smoke trailing behind it and its lamps all aglow.

EQUALLY highly must be commended the landscapes of M. E. Viala, etchings in black and white, or very slightly tinged with colour. They are all characterised by broad masses of tone, and there is about them a certain mystery reflecting their artist's peculiar mode of looking at nature. The plate called Humbles Terres is a noteworthy example of M. Viala's special excellences.

M. ROUX-CHAMPION sees his subjects in a less romantic and less cheerful light. His Pardon is one of his most successful efforts, and, in my opinion, there is much to admire in the colouring of the Robes rouges, the Moulin, and the pleasing impressionist view of the Jardin du Luxembourg.

M. HENRI PAILLARD, the illustrator of Bruges la morte, is evidently not very much in love with the process of etching in colour. His Quais de la Seine, however, is a very pleasing plate, but it is easy to see that the artist is more at home in black and white engraving.

M. L. PIVET'S Coq is a successful bit of decorative work in harmonious colouring ; M. Schuller in his Deux Coqs, and M. J. Angelvry in the two plates called Débuts and Fin d'un Maraudeur, have turned the resources of polychromatic etching to very good effect in their renderings of animals.

MANY other works deserve recognition and examination, full as they are of interest alike from the point of view of their artistic and of their technical value. I must be content, however, with mentioning the fine studies of women by M. Gaston Darbour, especially the Parisienne in a red dress looking at a drawing ; the Dame au Hibou ;

the Intérieur forain à la Foire de Neuilly by M. Bétout, displaying considerable observation and skill of execution; the exquisite Scène d'Intérieur of M. V. Dupont, in which a mother is seated sewing near her child perched in a high chair; the fine studies of flowers by Mdle. Voruz, which are perhaps rather too Japanese in style; the series of typical inhabitants and scenes from the street by Sunyer, notably the Place de l'Abreuvoir à Montmartre, Groupes assis au Luxembourg, which recall not very happily the manner of Steinlen; the landscapes of M. A. Lafitte, such as Soir à Onival; the Promenade après la Course by M. R. Canals, a characteristic Spanish scene; the landscapes of the south of France by M. Ralli-Scaramang, which vibrate with life and character; the studies of women by M. E. Roustan, interesting although the execution is rather feeble; and the Paysage du Bourbonnais of M. P. Maud. Lastly, I must not omit to mention especially the recent engravings in colour of M. Auguste Delâtre, the Solitude Marais, the beautiful Moonlight Effect in Scotland, and above all the Storm Effect, a magnificent etching in black and white, in which this master in engraving has attained to a tragic grandeur truly admirable.

WHAT rich and varied results have been achieved in this new art of etching in colour, how many artists of widely differing temperaments have been enticed to produce by its means works stamped with their own individuality! In the collections of engravings and museums of the future an important place will be occupied by etchings in colour. French engravers may well pride themselves on having widened the field of monochromatic engraving on metal, and of having revived the art of polychromatic etching; in a word, of having converted it into a prolific and supple process, lending itself to an infinite variety of expression, and capable of being adapted to every kind of artistic temperament, every peculiarity of style.

IN conclusion, let us offer our best thanks to M. Ed. Sagot and M. Charles Hessèle, the owners or publishers of the various etchings, reproductions from which form the illustrations of this article.

GABRIEL MOUREY.

Marie L. R. 669

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

“IN THE SNOW AT BEL-AIR.” FROM
THE ETCHING BY CHARLES HUARD

PLATE 3

(By permission of M. Hessèle)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

"LA DUCHESSE DE M... ENDORMIE"
FROM THE DRY-POINT BY P. HELLEU
PLATE 6

"JEAN HELLEU EMBRASSÉ PAR SA MÈRE." FROM THE DRY POINT BY P. HELLEU.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 9—"AMSTERDAM"

FROM THE ETCHING BY HENRY PAILLARD

"AMSTERDAM"
PLATE 10

FROM THE ETCHING BY AUGUSTE LEPÈRE
(By permission of M. Ed. Sagot)

"AT AMSTERDAM." FROM THE ETCHING BY A. LEPÈRE.

(By Permission of M. I. d. Sagot.)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 14—"BASSINS DE LA VILLETTE, LE JOUR"

FROM THE ETCHING BY H. PAILLARD

"THE FALLEN HORSE"
PLATE 15

FROM THE ENGRAVING BY R. DUPONT
(By permission of M. Ed. Sagot)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

French

“MARKET DAY—AVENUE DE CLICHY.” FROM THE ETCHING BY EDGAR CHAHINE

(By permission of M. Ed. Sagot)

PLATE 18

"A FORCED MARCH." FRO
THE ETCHING BY JEANNIO
PLATE 19

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

French

“HUMBLES TERRES.” FROM
THE ETCHING BY E. VIALA
PLATE 21

(By permission of M. Hessèle)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

“A CONCERT IN THE STREET.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY STEINLEN

French

“VIEW ON THE SEINE, FROM THE PONT ROYAL.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY EUGÈNE BÉJOT
PLATE 25

"ON THE SEINE." FROM THE
ETCHING BY EUGÈNE BÉJOT
PLATE 26

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN GERMANY. BY HANS W. SINGER.

HERE was a renaissance of etching in Germany, as of most of the other forms of art, during the last quarter of last century. Among the men who plied the point seriously before then, and still remain in the foremost ranks, C. A. Meyer-Basel and P. Halm are perhaps the best. Both are known by a large number of delicate landscapes, showing views of Suabia, the northern boundary lines of Switzerland around Lake Constance, and similar regions, seen with an eye which does not feel attracted to landscape in its aspects of grandeur or in its romantic phases, but which loves nature pure and simple, even if it be but a few steps beyond the gates of a city.

OF the two Halm has some special claims upon our interest, even above Meyer-Basel. He has with excellent fidelity and grace reproduced the work of other artists, and designed ornamental work. One of the best proofs of his abilities in this direction is to be found in the magnificent volumes dealing with the collections of Frederic the Great, which were on exhibit in the German Pavilion of the Paris Exhibition of 1900. Moreover Halm is, after a fashion, in spite of his comparative youth, the Nestor of modern etching.

FOR it was he who gave technical instruction, as a friend, to Karl Stauffer-Bern, and on the path upon which Stauffer led there afterwards followed Klinger. To Klinger's genius, again, as well as to his success, which called forth a widespread interest in the art, the recent revival is due.

STAUFFER commenced as a portrait-painter and etcher. He was a sculptor at heart, but unfortunately he did not find that out much before the calamity befell him which ended his life. The wearisome, torturing process of elaborating his own ideal, of finding the direction in which his technical talent and the bent of his genius lay, was all evolved on the field of etching. He had a keen eye for form, loved to follow each slight elevation and depression, and continually sought for the best means towards a full and conscientious expression of form. This caused him first to drop the strong line in etching, then to relinquish the point altogether and to take up the graver in its place. But he did not use it in the mannered fashion to which the thoughtless successors of Mercuri and Toschi had reduced it. He gave up the set "system" and used the graver with as much freedom as etchers do the point. The difference in effect is that the quality of his delicate line helps him to obtain effects of precision and "colour" that the point and bitten line do not yield. As an attainment in the direction of superb "modelling," such plates as Stauffer's portrait of his mother and the reclining nude model, have rarely been surpassed.

KLINGER, originally an etcher in true spirit, underwent transformations like Stauffer, but has lived to complete them. He, too, in the end has become a sculptor at heart. When he was young the exuberance of his fancy impelled him to take to etching and pen drawing, for he had more ideas, all struggling to be put to the test, than he could comfortably have painted. From the standpoint of the connoisseur of etching pure and simple, Klinger's earliest work, such as the sets on Ovid and the fable of Cupid and Psyche, are the most pleasing. They are tantalisingly full of odd fancies, but this "literary" character is nevertheless kept in the background. The latter series, such as the Story of a Love, Story of a Life, On Death, are overwhelming as lucubrations of a mind that must be taken seriously. Yet he is beginning to neglect his style, owing to the earnestness with which he endeavours to enforce what he has to say. The latest series, above all the Brahmsphantasie, considered as pure art, show a decline. His powers as a draughtsman are as great as ever, his fancy as vivid and powerful as before, yet his craft has fallen off lamentably. He combines on one plate methods that lack harmony. He keeps the desired effect in view, and makes for it without considering the character of his medium. Now that Klinger has turned sculptor altogether, he has lost the patience, conscientiousness, and lightness of hand which characterised the early period of his career.

OF the men whom he particularly impressed, Greiner, Kolbe, Dasio, and Hofer, none but Dasio has devoted much time to engraving and etching. Dasio has done notable work; but he has allowed himself to be carried away by a sort of spirit of romance which delights in parading a degree of culture greater than he really possesses. And in presenting his allegories, his philosophical sets, he has neglected to devote sufficient time to the technical part of his art and to his draughtsmanship.

THERE are no schools of etching in Germany, any more than there formerly were. More men apply themselves to it, and the quality as well as quantity of work produced is very much higher than it was

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

of delicate dry-points on zinc by Liebermann, little Dutch views, which betray a fine sense of the beauty of the materials employed. LEISTIKOW, of Berlin also, turns etching into an altogether decorative art, just as he does painting. His style, far removed from naturalism, is very personal and engaging, from the fact that he simplifies not only the colours but also the forms of nature.

THE work of Mrs. Kollwitz is the last one would expect from a woman. There is all but brutal realism in her delineation of the lowest types of humanity. Yet such powerful creations as the weird dance about the Guillotine are wonderfully impressive. Unfortunately most of her plates—the series on the Weavers, the Riot, &c.,—savour too much of politics.

AT Karlsruhe there are Thoma and Kalckreuth, who have etched a good deal. What interests us in their plates is the painter, or rather the artist, whom we know through his paintings. They have not as yet turned out work that adds any important new touches to their characteristics as we already know them. It is the same with the late Leibl, or with Stuck, or with Menzel even. We would not care to miss their etchings, and yet when we pass judgment on these artists, our opinion of their etchings will not weigh heavily with us. Stuck, perhaps, of all the five touches us nearest. His Pool in a Trout Stream is a beautiful plate, making the most of a wonderful technique. Before leaving Karlsruhe mention, at least, should be made of Walther Conz.

MUNICH, once upon a time the undoubted metropolis of German art, strange to say, has never given birth to a school of etchers in any way comparable with that of its painters. One of the most interesting among the younger men, Heinrich Wolff, received a call to Königsberg, just when he was beginning to be known. He has done portraits principally, and has used the roulette in an extremely interesting way. Hegenbart, who has just begun to work upon this field, promises to succeed excellently, when we keep in mind what he has already achieved with his first few plates. He has done delicate line work, slightly too reminiscent of pure pen-and-ink drawing, but he has also completed some excellent surface work, notably the Ready for Flight. THOSE etchers who prefer to employ surface techniques, and aim at the pictorial chiaroscuro of the painters, are either Munich men or traceable to Munich influence. They are all landscapists, and I should place Gampert, with his fine moorland scenes, at the head of the list. Graf approaches him closely; so does Pankok, who employs mezzotint, whereas the other two use aquatint and soft ground etching preferably. The “Worpswede” artists, Mackensen and

German

Overbeck would fall within or near to this category, at least as regards their aim if not their technique, which is principally pure line etching depending upon the help of the printer and of retroussage for the tonality.

THERE are, of course, also line landscape-etchers such as Ubbelohde, who has produced beautiful, sunny work, with sweeping strokes, great delicacy, and a well thought out translation of the surfaces in nature into a scheme of line. Rasch and Hagen, of Weimar, as well as Hirzel, who is at the same time a well-known book-plate etcher, show more or less similarity to Ubbelohde.

PERHAPS I ought not to pass by Geyger and R. Müller, and Vogeler, the latter of whom has produced a number of well-known plates—but they are affected and singularly weak in sentiment. Geyger is remarkably skilful; but this has led him into so great a degree of over-finish that some of his later work is almost painful to behold. R. Müller's absolute want of fancy or refined conception unfortunately render his technically excellent plates as devoid of interest as photogravures.

THESE are the names of the greater part, though, of course, not all of the modern German etchers. Upon the whole they will bear comparison with those of other countries well enough. If there is not so much feeling for purity of style in evidence as there might be, this is, perhaps, somewhat counterbalanced by the great variety and freshness to be found in German work of the day. There has been less of imitation and more of originality in recent German etching and engraving than in any of the other forms of German art.

HANS W. SINGER.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 2—"A GUSTY DAY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY OTTO UBBELOHDE

PLATE 3—"AN IDYLL"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY HANS THOMA

"THE REAPERS." FROM THE
ETCHING BY LEOPOLD COUNT
KALCKREUTH

PLATE 4

German

“IN THE ORCHARD” FROM THE AQUATINT BY OSCAR GRAF

PLATE 5

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

“THE RUINED TURRET.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY OTTO UBBELOHDE
PLATE 7

PLATE 8—"IN HESSIA"

FROM THE ETCHING BY C. THEODOR MEYER-BASEL

PLATE 9—"NEAR STARNBERG"

FROM THE ETCHING BY C. T. MEYER-BASEL

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 11—"A RIVER SCENE AFTER SUNDOWN"

FROM THE ETCHING BY OTTO GAMPERT

PLATE 12—"ADAM AND EVE, SATAN AND DEATH"

FROM THE ETCHING BY MAX KLINGER

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 16—“DANCE IN A GIN-SHOP”
FROM THE SOFT-GROUND ETCHING BY KÄTHE KOLLWITZ

PLATE 17—“THE VIOLINIST

FROM THE MIXED ETCHING BY BERNHARD PANKOK

“A BEER-GARDEN IN ROSENHEIM.” FROM THE ETCHING BY MAX LIEBERMANN

"ART AND MAMMON." ETCHED AND AQUATINTED BY FRITZ HEGENBART
PLATE 19

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

“THE FOOTBRIDGE.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY FRITZ OVERBECK

German

“ROCKS ON THE ISLAND OF RÜGEN.” FROM THE AQUA-TINT BY OTTO FISCHER

PLATE 22

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 24—"BREAKERS"

FROM THE ETCHING BY OTTO FISCHER

PLATE 25—"RETURNING HOME IN THE SNOW"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY ARTHUR ILLIES

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN AUSTRIA. BY WILHELM SCHÖLERMANN.

MODERN Art in Austria, properly speaking, is but a young though rapidly-growing plant of recent cultivation and success. Its "nativity," if I may be allowed to use the term in its twofold sense, scarcely dates back more than half a decade. Even as late as 1896, when the great International Exhibition of Graphic Art took place at Vienna, Austrian etchers, with the exception of a few engravers of the old masters, were conspicuous by their absence. It is not surprising, therefore, if we find that the noblest branch of the graphic arts, which, perhaps, above all others is based upon severe and time-honoured tradition—the work of the steel point upon the copperplate—has not ranked foremost among the latter productions of Austrian artists.

THERE may, perhaps, be found still another, and even more psychological explanation to account for this. The average talent of the Austrian artist—his artistic temperament—lies, on the whole, in a different direction. It is in the free development of fancy and taste, in the happy adaptation of form and colour to decorative purposes, that he generally finds the best opportunity for developing his powers. He is a born decorator. Severe and penetrative artistic conceptions are not, as a rule his strongest side; but he delights in multi-coloured pageants—a field not altogether encouraging for the development of the gentle and patient art of etching.

MOREOVER, that essentially modern phase of etching, which, while uniting the hard and digging scrape of the burin or the lighter stroke of the dry point with a variety of dainty colour schemes, has contributed so largely to the perfection of colour-printing of late—a process so successfully initiated by French artists of high rank—this new process of coloured etching has not, to my knowledge, been hitherto practised to any extent by living painter-etchers in Austria. Yet the movement seems even in Vienna to gain ground by degrees, though limited for the present to reproductive engraving.

WILLIAM UNGER, though not an Austrian by birth, has taken up his abode in the Austrian capital, and holds a professorship at the Vienna Academy of Fine Arts. His etchings, after the old Dutch and Flemish masters, Rembrandt and Rubens in particular, are universally appreciated, though it must be admitted that they are not all of equal strength and value, some of his numerous plates failing to do full justice to the breadth and spirit of the originals, while others are extremely good. His large plate after Titian's painting of the so-called Himmlische und Irdische Liebe (Profane and Divine Love) may be named among his most successful transmutations of colour into the mellow effects of the mezzotint plate.

PROFESSOR UNGER is generally regarded as the senior etcher and tutor of a generation of gifted "juniors." In fact he has inspired quite a number of younger men to work with the engraver's tools, and it would appear, from the entirely independent way in which several of his pupils and friends have developed in different directions, that his tuition and advice have not exercised any restrictive influence upon the individuality of the talents placed under his care, but, on the contrary, have been helpful in allowing free scope for each talent to find its own way by following its peculiar inclinations.

AMONG the younger generation, Mr. Alfred Cossmann, a pupil of Unger, has been developing his talent in a decidedly individual manner. He was born in 1870 at Graz in the Steirmark, and, after studying at the School of Arts and Crafts of the Oesterreichische Museum für Kunst und Industrie in Vienna—principally in the ceramic department—he began etching under Prof. Unger's directions, and has now been working independently for the last three years, after a strict course of technical training in the various methods of reproductive engraving.

IN the plate entitled A Tumult—An unlucky Democrat, the artist has taken up a modern theme. There is suggestive force of a quite exceptional character in it, a hot breath of feverish agitation. There is, in fact, an abundance of imaginative expression, which, while intensely true, stops only just short of caricature. Work of this kind, thoroughly modern in spirit and cut out from life in this earnest manner, is deserving of attention not merely from a technical point of view, but in a higher and broader sense. This young artist is, in my opinion, gifted with more than talent. There is an element of strong human sympathy in him, mingled with that scarcely perceptible ironical vein which marks the artist of genius.

COSSMANN employs a variety of technical methods, combining them as the subject may require. The above-mentioned plate was etched completely, and then the aquatint was put in for background, middle tones and some pieces of the clothes and hair.

ANOTHER artist of uncommon parts, Mr. Ferdinand Schmutzer,

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies to the simple gradations of black and white. The reproductive engraver represents for the fine arts what the translator does for literature: he must be above all an interpreter. He must penetrate into the centre of another's personality and also into the technical spirit of the original—that peculiar medium of individual expression so frequently overlooked, yet, in truth, inseparable from any art worthy of the name.

AMONG the contemporary reproductive etchers and engravers, the Polish artist, Mr. Ignaz Lopiński has attained a high standard of technical execution, combined with a very delicate artistic feeling for what may be termed the soul of the picture he is translating.

LOPIEŃSKI was born at Warsaw in 1865. He began his studies at first as a sculptor and medallist in Vienna under the direction of Professor Bengler, then at the Ecole des Arts Décoratifs in Paris, whence he returned to Vienna, and finally again to Warsaw.

HE is above all an interpreter of his native land, that low desert plain of wild flat country, where the poor peasant people are still held in serfdom by the rich landowners, those broad spaces of wilderness, with ill-fed horses and starving vegetation, commonly known by the name of Poland, comprising parts of the Russian, German, and Austrian Empires. The plate here given, entitled A Winter Night, is engraved after a painting by another Polish artist, Prof. Wierusz-Kowalski. It shows a wide expanse of snow in a moonlit winter's night, rendered more lonely still by a few storm-torn pines and firs, looming spectre-like against the sky, with its twinkling stars half extinguished, as it were, by the glaring reflection of the snow. The ground shows the footprints of a pack of hungry wolves assembled in the background, as if holding a sort of council. The solitary beast in the foreground, with his tail drawn in, is sniffing up into the starry heavens, and one may just faintly discern his warm breath like a vapour against the still, icy-cold air. There is a weird loneliness in the scene which words fail to give.

THE masterful technique of the plate in question is evident. There are unity and concentration, combined with elaborate execution, though by no means any over-minuteness.

IN conclusion, we may say that, although experiments outside the sphere of black and white do not yet figure among the achievements of Austrian etchers, yet what they give is good genuine work. Whatever the results of their efforts in the old medium, they are deserving of our earnest attention.

WILHELM SCHÖLERMANN.

Austrian

"PORTRAIT." FROM THE ETCHING
BY WILLIAM UNGER

PLATE I

“PEASANT GIRL SEWING”
FROM THE ETCHING BY
FERDINAND SCHMUTZER

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

“THE WATCHMAN.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY ALFRED COSSMANN

PLATE 5

“A WINTER NIGHT.” FROM THE ETCHING BY IGNAZ LOPIEŃSKI,
AFTER THE PAINTING BY A. WIERUSZ-KOWALSKI

PLATE 7—"ADMONITION"
FROM THE ETCHING BY EMIL ORLIK

PLATE 8—"WIND ON THE PLAIN—THE COMING OF AUTUMN"
FROM THE ETCHING BY EMIL ORLIK

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

“THE CLIFFS.” FROM THE ETCHING
BY RUDOLPH JETTMAR
PLATE 10

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN HUNGARY. BY ANTHONY TAHI.

THE etching, especially the coloured etching, can have no history, boast no tradition, with a people whose whole artistic development is still so recent as that of the Hungarians. In those countries, however, where modern art has attained its greatest height, such as England, France, and Germany, the line engraving, together with the far inferior steel-plate, has held the field the longest. The whole tendency of art has been so strongly opposed to pure line, that really it is no wonder such a process as etching, demanding as it does eminently efficient treatment and handling should have been altogether neglected by many artists.

WITH the birth of a richer, a more highly-coloured vision, and particularly since our artists began to abandon their rigid bias and no longer scorned to interest themselves in all varieties of artistic work, the graphic arts—etching, lithography and occasionally xylography—once more came into favour.

CERTAIN it is, so far as Hungary is concerned, that, from one cause and another—the difficulties of the process, and notably the indifference of the public—the number of artists who have applied themselves to colour-etching is still quite insignificant. Our artists are greatly to blame for this state of things, for the majority of them make light of everything save easel-work, and think nothing else worth their notice.

WHILE in other countries, such as England, Belgium, France and Germany, etching-Associations have been in existence for nearly twenty-five years past, with the happiest results; while, moreover, the public taste has been stimulated and raised by the publication of admirable reproductions of this class of work, we in Hungary have been absolutely without anything of the sort until last year, when a “Graphic Club” was founded; and up till now it has produced no tangible results.

THE poor figure we cut in regard to the graphic arts must be largely attributed to the fact that Hungary has really no art-market of its own, and that it lies remote from all the international art centres.

AS I have already observed, the number of Hungarian artists engaged in producing original etchings is very small. Most of these are painters, who recognise the necessity of expressing themselves in more than one artistic medium, and of having more than one outlet for their energies.

WHEN, nearly a quarter of a century since, the writer of these lines desired to learn the technique of etching, there was in the whole country only one man capable of giving him practical instruction therein. This was the copper-engraver Jenö Doby, at present the doyen of Hungarian etchers; for he has abandoned line engraving and devoted himself exclusively to etching. Still, even now he cannot give up the graver: thus, his etchings are marked by a strong and well-disciplined sense of line. His original etchings are very few. Doby occupies the Chair of Etching at the Budapest Applied Art School, where among his pupils were B. Chabada, A. Székely, and Edvi-Illés.

ETCHING owes much also to Professor Lajos Raüscher of the Budapest Polytechnic, who by his example has aroused and fostered a love of the art among many of the young artists studying under his guidance. At first, especially in his views of Budapest, the architect betrayed himself by his stiff, precise drawing of the architecture, and his subordination of the picturesque side of his scenes; but soon these blemishes were overcome, and his fine natural style asserted itself with effect, especially in his aquatints, which are full of expression. A notable feature of all his plates is the care he bestows on his subject in order to bring out its entire value.

ZSIGMOND LANDSINGER'S first etching was Arnold Böcklin's Heiliger Hain, which he did in Florence.

HERE too originated the Portrait of Böcklin, that energetic and powerfully designed life-size plate, which so characteristically and vividly reproduces the head of the genial Swiss Painter. The intimate friendship which sprang up between Böcklin and Landsinger resulted also in the production of another plate, Fafner der Drache, executed by Böcklin himself as a monotype. Landsinger's etchings are conspicuous for thorough mastery of material, and for dainty yet forceful handling of flesh tints.

VIKTOR OLGYAI studied under William Unger in Vienna and under Theodore Alphonse in Paris. As he originally intended to devote himself entirely to the graphic arts, and only later took up oil-painting, his technical knowledge of etching is remarkable. He is pre-eminently a draughtsman, and though his plates are finely toned, the most notable thing about them is their sense of line.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Hungarian

“FEBRUARY.” FROM THE ETCHING
BY VIKTOR OLGYAI

PLATE I

“FRESH SNOW.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY VIKTOR OLGYAI
PLATE 2

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

“WASHING CLOTHES IN A RIVER.” FRO
THE ETCHING BY AKOS F. ARANYÓSSY
PLATE 4

“SUNLIGHT IN THE FOREST.” FRO
THE ETCHING BY ÁRPÁD SZÉKELY
PLATE 5

PLATE 6—"HUNGARIAN PEASANT"

FROM THE ETCHING BY A. TAHI

PLATE 7—"PARISH CHURCH, BUDAPEST"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY LAJOS RAÜSCHER

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 9—"PORTRAIT STUDY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY ZSIGMOND LANDSINGER

PLATE 10—"PORTRAIT OF ARNOLD BÖCKLIN"

FROM THE ETCHING BY ZSIGMOND LANDSINGER

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN HOLLAND. BY PHILIP ZILCKEN.

URING the early part of the nineteenth century, etching, which had flourished so splendidly in Holland in Rembrandt's time, was almost completely abandoned. About 1850 some painters—Mollinger, Jan Weissenbruch and Roelofs—made a number of interesting plates, which nevertheless lacked the free and artistic treatment that makes etchings so delightful.

IT was the well-known Austrian etcher, Unger, who once during a sojourn in Holland induced Josef Israëls, Mauve, and some other painters of the same group, to varnish copper-plates, and to make on them rapid or more elaborate improvisations, many of which have all the charm of the subtlest etchings. Most of these plates are exceedingly rare, and they cause regret that those refined artists did not oftener practise this delicate art.

C. STORM VAN GRAVESANDE, whose work of this kind is well known, lived at that time in Belgium, where he worked under the guidance of Felicien Rops. He rapidly gained so great a reputation that Philip Gilbert Hamerton, in his book on Etching and Etchers, devoted a considerable number of pages to this painter-etcher. Hamerton says of him, in 1876, speaking of his print, Au bord du Geins, près d'Abcoude: "THIS IS ONE OF THE MOST PERFECT ETCHINGS PRODUCED BY THE MODERN SCHOOLS, SO PERFECT INDEED, THAT IF I WERE RESTRICTED TO THE POSSESSION OF SIX MODERN ETCHINGS, THIS SHOULD BE ONE OF THEM." Storm van Gravesande has produced a great many plates; actually about four hundred. In recent years he has abandoned pure etching and has devoted himself almost entirely to "dry-points." In this class of work I think his most typical prints are to be found. In them he succeeds in expressing perfectly the slow-flowing waters of the placid Dutch streams, the quiet surface of the Laguna of Venice, and sometimes the rough waves of the North Sea beating upon the sandy lowland beaches. With but a few lines he expresses much, and his work supplies a very complete survey of Holland's picturesque landscape.

STORM VAN GRAVESANDE takes a place apart in this school of etching. He has worked chiefly in Holland, but lived many years in Belgium and Germany, and it was only a few years ago that he returned to his native country.

ISRAËLS has kept up his etching in recent years, and a good number of prints of his exist. They are all true etchings, in the sense that they consist of pure line-work, sometimes carried out direct, sometimes elaborated in different states. This great artist has interpreted in this way some of his favourite subjects—luminous and harmonious interior effects, and bright, brilliant beach scenes, with fishermen's children playing on the sands. All these works betray a personal, expressive technique, with masterly contrasts of light and shade, and are full of intense, penetrating feeling.

JAMES MARIS, when he commenced etching, made about four very small plates—a bridge, a couple of mills, and a print showing a sketch of his wife and his eldest daughter. These plates have all the qualities of similar ones by Rembrandt. The delicate and expressive drawing, the few well-placed lines, are quite masterly. Maris made more plates, many of which are lost,* among them some little gems containing all his personal qualities of feeling, tone, and expressive drawing.

MATTHEW MARIS executed at that time one very small plate—now exceedingly rare—a girl with a lamb and a baby; but years afterwards he undertook to make a reproduction of the celebrated “Semeur,” by Millet.

IN order to train himself again in etching he then commenced a number of plates, but he himself considers these remarkable prints—that have already attained high prices—mere essays of little or no importance. The plate after the “Semeur” is a marvellous interpretation, not a mere copy, of a masterpiece, by a genius, and in this respect it is certainly one of the most remarkable plates ever produced. Maris has added his own individual feeling to the grand conception of Millet, and thus (a rare event) two artists of the same high rank have collaborated in creating a work of unique quality.

JONGKIND, at the same epoch, made his well-known rapid, expressive, and characteristic views of Honfleur and Le Havre, and his lively sketches of Paris and Holland. But modern Dutch etching owes its renown chiefly to the younger masters, who have devoted a great part of their time to this art, such as Bauer, Witsen, Dupont, Miss van Houten, and others. Since 1889 they have regularly exhibited their works at the Great Paris Exhibitions, at Chicago, Venice, and in Germany, with much success, while in 1900 they made a striking “hit” at the Exposition Universelle.

* The New York Public Library contains the only existing complete collection of these.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

characteristic of Dutch artists that they work in their own way, following their own personal convictions, without paying attention to outside influences. And the result is individuality.

AMONG such artists Willem Witsen and P. Dupont are notable types. WITSEN is the painter of the sluggish Dutch waters of Amsterdam and Dordrecht, reflecting the old, picturesque, many-coloured buildings, often dreary and gloomy, but always full of charm. Of all the subjects chosen for his water-colours he makes etchings, and they are as thoroughly elaborated as his other work. Adding sometimes sulphur tints he obtains powerful effects, never abandoning a plate before having completely expressed in it the effect, the colour, and the harmonious tone he seeks. For him every one of his plates must be a work of art.

DUPONT, who began his career with rapid, expressive etchings after nature, chiefly views of Amsterdam and its surroundings, has entirely changed his manner in recent years.

NOT satisfied with the brilliant effects achieved in his etched plates, he tried his hand some years ago at engraving. This work of his attracted considerable attention at the Paris Exhibition in 1900. He has since continued this most difficult work with increasing success, and now he is working on portraits, one of which, that of Steinlen, is worthy of particular mention. He still etches, but these plates are for him mere preparatory studies for his engravings. Being young, admirably gifted, and full of endurance and energy, much can be expected from him in the future.

MISS B. VAN HOUTEN, though little known, is a most striking etcher, too. She is a niece of the marine-painter Mesdag, and so, from her early youth, she has lived in an artistic milieu. When her studies were finished, she began to make some large plates after masterpieces, by Corot, Delacroix, Courbet and Dupré. After the last-named artist she made a very beautiful plate, so carefully and conscientiously elaborated that it gives exactly the tone, and the values, of the original. In this fine plate nothing is left to chance, but every touch is interpreted with rare and delicate skill. Miss Van Houten has also completed about a hundred original plates.

THESE plates show great strength and vigour. When she etches birds, tulips, sunflowers, or interior effects or heads, she works with deeply bitten, broad, strong lines. Such work could easily produce black, heavy prints, but her delicate sensibility, her intense feeling for the things interpreted, save it from that evil, and her plates always express marvellously the tender substances of flower-petals, the soft plumage of birds, and the aerial distances in landscapes.

Dutch

TO add a few words about myself, I have completed during the last twenty years about four hundred and fifty plates, of which about two hundred are reproductions after the Marises, Mauve, Israëls, Alfred Stevens, Rembrandt, Vermeer of Delft, &c. &c., while others are exclusively original landscapes, most of them after nature, and studies in dry-point after models, and a few portraits.

THE artists I have mentioned are the principal figures in modern Dutch etching. Around them are working a good number of others, of various but real merit. My space being limited, I must content myself with a mere sketch of their various characteristics.

AMONG the painters who have made many good and interesting etchings, mention must be made of W. de Zwart, a clever and brilliant landscape and figure-painter, whose expressive etchings are numerous.

TOOROP has done in the last few years some extremely delicate dry-points, chiefly figure studies. His etchings, like everything he produces, are very striking and personal.

JAN VETH, one of our most distinguished portrait-painters, has done many lithographs of celebrated Dutch-men, and also some fine etchings, of uncommon feeling and ability.

I MUST not forget, in this too short and too rapid enumeration, Etienne Bosch, who produced a great many plates, mediæval subjects and views of Holland and Italy, among which the view of Sorrents is excellent in style and composition.

MISS ETHA FLES has done some "pure" etching, such as her Staircase at Rothenburg. Ed. Karsen, the somewhat Maeterlinck-like painter of gloomy, almost fantastic, Dutch dwellings, has done some plates of very peculiar and subtle interest. Ed. Becht has made some important soft-ground etchings, among which his Rising Moon is a very interesting plate done by means of a rarely used process.

REICHER is a painter who, besides a couple of very carefully made plates after Breitner and after M. Maris, has drawn original landscapes and some still-life subjects of striking directness of execution.

W. O. J. NIEUWENKAMP was one of the first Dutch painters who went to Java. Having a very personal style, he brought from there some characteristic and interesting views.

A. KOSTER, after doing some views of the Pyrenees, applied himself to Dutch landscape, and reproduced views of the neighbourhood of the Hague and Limburg, rendering the character of those parts of Holland in a remarkably truthful manner.

AND now to complete this short sketch, I must add the names of some etchers of merit who have done a number of important plates after our [■] ancient and modern masters, but scarcely ever any original work.

IN the first place, Van der Weele, a painter in the style of Mauve, has done some very harmonious and lovely interpretations after that master. Some originals of his are of very good quality, for instance The Dead Lamb and Pigs Drinking. The same can be said of the little views of Haarlem and surroundings by Graadt Van Roggen, a hard worker who has also made very elaborate and carefully treated reproductions after J. Maris, Vermeer, &c., which display much patient labour.

PROFESSOR C. DAKE, of Amsterdam, has made a number of important plates after Mauve, Israëls, Maris, Mesdag, &c., in a broad manner, full of ability, that have met with great popularity.

PH. ZILCKEN.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 3—"STILL LIFE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY MISS B. G. VAN HOUTEN

PLATE 4—"LA RUE DU JERZUAL À DINAN"

FROM THE ETCHING BY A. F. REICHER

Dutch

“LEAVING THE MOSQUE”
FROM THE ETCHING BY
M. BAUER

(By permission of Mr. E. van Wisselingh)

PLATE 5

“A DUTCH CHURCH.” FROM
THE ETCHING BY W. O. J.
NIEUWENKAMP

PLATE 6

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 8—"IN THE LIMBURG HILLS"

FROM THE ETCHING BY A. L. KOSTER

PLATE 9—"AN OLD COTTAGE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY E. BECHT

Dutch

“VESPERS.” FROM THE ETCHING BY STORM VAN
GRAVESANDE

PLATE 10

“THE BAY OF SALERNO”
FROM THE ETCHING BY
E. BOSCH

PLATE II

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

results in the better distribution of the ink when the impressions are being struck off, and enables M. Baertsoen to secure effects by the retroussage on which he sets such store and turns to such good account, without going to the extremes indulged in by so many of his fellow etchers.

MESSIEURS WYTSMAN and Van Rysselberghe, on the other hand, appear to scorn to avail themselves of the too skilful aid of the printer, and when their well-prepared and carefully-executed drawings have been reproduced, they have all the value of conscientious work. In his etchings M. Wytsman gives proof of his thorough study of the landscape scenery of Brabant, and delights in representing the noble and dignified lines of the grand masses of forest trees characteristic of the undulating country districts. M. Van Rysselberghe, too, in his portraits and sea-pieces avoids all superficial expedients, and endeavours in every case to faithfully interpret his subject.

IT is qualities similar to these which give value to the works of Messrs. Coppens and Bartholomé. M. Ensor has already won considerable reputation as an engraver, and his etchings of sea-pieces and landscapes, inspired by the scenery of Ostende and its neighbourhood, are remarkable for a delicacy of touch, which does full justice to the subtle effects of silvery light so characteristic of the Belgian sea-board.

THE works of Messrs. Laermans and Delaunois are remarkable for their very crude appearance. The etchings of M. Laermans, indeed, give the impression of having been engraved with the aid of a very old nail, while those of M. Delaunois do not appear to have been bitten in, but to have been vitriolised. For all that, however, the engravings of both these celebrated artists have, so far as art essentials are concerned, the same fine qualities as their paintings. It is the same with the Antwerp master, M. Hens, whose sea-pieces, in spite of their somewhat rough execution, are full of luminous brightness, and attracted special attention at the Exhibition of the Society of Etchers.

MESSRS. Heins, Gailliard, Mignot, Romberg, Titz, and H. Meunier have all brought to bear upon their work with the etching needle that same facility of execution which they have gained by practice in making drawings for book illustration or in designing posters. LASTLY, there is only one Belgian painter-etcher who cultivates exclusively the process known as dry-point, and that one is the writer of these notes, who has engraved in that medium several drawings or studies in outline or shade.

IN his "History of the Fine Arts in Belgium" Camille Lemonnier defines very accurately that which specially distinguishes Messrs.

Belgian

G. Biot and A. Danse, who may be said to be at the present time the two engravers by profession who dominate the Society of Etchers : “FROM the very first time he exhibited, Biot manifested those qualities of distinction and grace which have since gradually developed into a completed individual style of great distinction. Delicacy, balance, and simplicity of effect, grace of sentiment, with something of timidity and reserve in the general scheme, these are the salient features of an art which is at the same time pleasing and severe, modifying classic stiffness by its contact with a grace altogether modern.”

“THE art of Danse, on the contrary, is comparatively coarse, passionate, feverish. The hasty dashiness of the sketch is retained even in his completed work ; he loves tones which clash with one another, unrelieved black, sharp effects of light, rugged execution. Of the school of J. B. Meunier, on whose style he formed his own, he has retained nothing but the decision of stroke of the burin, with a certain grasp of the processes employed and some skill of handling. With him the etching needle is almost always pressed into the service as supplementary to the graver or burin ; it is it which gives to his plates their sharpness of line and richness of tone ; even to his most severely correct engravings it lends a certain capriciousness which would be repudiated by those who use the burin pure and simple.”

M. DANSE, however, is not content with producing a vast number of engravings, he also aspires to forming engravers ; and whilst he was Professor of Drawing at the Royal Academy of Mons in 1871 he founded a school of engraving in that town at his own expense. From this school issued, amongst others, Messrs. Lenain, Bernier, L. Greuze, and Lucq, with M^{elles}. Weiler, Wesmael, L. Danse, and Mme. Destrée-Danse, the two last named the daughters of the master. M. LENAIN may justly be said to take first rank amongst contemporary line-engravers. He handles the rigid graving tool with ease and subtlety, resulting sometimes in the production of effects more varied than those to be obtained in etching. A long study of the masterpieces of French engraving has done much to aid him in the development of his peculiar excellence—delicacy of execution. Moreover, a certain indefinable natural instinct, the result of his nationality, has led him to interpret well the grand production of the painters of the Flemish Renaissance, and he has begun a series of fine engravings after the works of Rubens.

THE works of the engraver, F. Maréchal, of Liège, have already been criticised in the STUDIO in an article published two years ago, and in another article which came out in the same magazine in 1898, under the heading, "Some Artists of Liege," the remarkable art-talent of M. A. Rassenfosse, the faithful friend and devoted disciple of the extraordinary genius Félicien Rops, was commented upon with considerable appreciation, and attention was drawn to his profound knowledge of all the processes of the engraver's craft.

TWO other artists of Liège, Messrs. Donnay and De Witte, have attracted attention by some etchings full of originality and character.

AMONGST the engravers who have turned their attention to taking impressions in colour must be named, as especially successful, M. Q. DE SAMPAYO, an artist of Portuguese extraction, who may be fitly included in this article on living Belgian engravers on account of his having studied under M. Rassenfosse and produced most of his work in Brussels. M. De Sampayo has himself carefully superintended the translation into colour of his etchings, and with the aid of M. Van Campenhout, the skilful printer to the Society of Etchers, he has coloured several delicate plates à la poupée.

IT was also by means of this process that the plates of Messrs. Romberg, Coppens, Gaudy, and those of the author of these notes were coloured, whereas those of Messrs. Titz and Schlobach were printed and coloured by what is known as the super-position process, that is to say, by the use of a succession of several plates, each marked with the most minute care and capable of bearing as many as three colours, provided those colours are very strictly delimited. No doubt this process is decidedly easier for the printer, but, on the other hand, it is certain that greater delicacy and subtlety of colouring can be obtained by the process à la poupée.

FERNAND KHNOFF.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

"A ROMAN OUTCAST." FROM THE ENGRAVING BY A. DANSE, AFTER THE PAINTING BY E. WAUTERS

Belgian

PLATE 3—"THREE SHOTS FOR A PENNY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY F. GAILLIARD

PLATE 4—"FANTASIA"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY M. ROMBERG

PLATE 5—"A BLEAK LANDSCAPE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY H. MEUNIER

PLATE 6—"A STORMY EVENING, BRABANT"

FROM THE ETCHING BY R. WYTSMAN

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 8—"A STUDY"

FROM THE AQUATINT BY L. TITZ

"PLATE 9—"L'HEURE DU SALUT"

FROM THE ETCHING BY O. COPPENS

PLATE 10—"A BRIDGE OVER THE MEUSE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY F. MARECHAL

PLATE 11—"NOCTURNE"

FROM THE ENGRAVING BY T. VAN RYSSELBERGHE

PLATE 12—"VILLAGE POLITICIANS"

FROM THE ETCHING BY E. LAERMANS

PLATE 13—"UN GESTE DE RESPECT"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY FERNAND KHNOFF

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

Kroyer were amongst his pupils, and I believe it was a matter of general regret when he brought his teaching to a close. Locher was also the first in Denmark to produce large etchings, and that some of these are not more widely known outside his own country is no doubt due largely to the fact that the plates, in order to ensure the absolute limitation of the issues, were in several instances destroyed. IT may not be out of place to mention here that "The Studio," in its selection for reproduction, has wished to give most prominence to work in which the line has been allowed its full sway as against too much "net work" or "tone." In one or two instances the etchings have unfortunately been received too late to allow of their being reproduced. I should also like to take this opportunity of acknowledging the courtesy extended to me, not only by the artists, but also by the publishing firms of Winkel and Magnussen and Stender. LORENZ FRÖLICH divides with Vilhelm Kyhn the honour of being the Grand Old Man in Danish Art, not only as a painter but also as an etcher. I believe the immense span of sixty-three years lies between Frölich's first etching and his most recent one, which no one would suspect of being the work of an octogenarian. His right hand has not yet by any means lost its cunning, and his intimate knowledge of animal life is aptly demonstrated in this little etching—in the innate bad temper of the smaller dog and the good-natured, half playful indifference of the larger. It, however, illustrates but one side of Frölich's art, for he has etched a number of charming illustrations—religious (The Lord's Prayer), poetical (Cupid and Psyche) and historical. These show him as a designer of the highest rank, full of imagination and power, and the possessor of a never-failing sense of the beautiful. His contours are especially exquisite, one might almost say invariably so, but the details do not always seem to have interested him much, and I believe mechanical ground-work has in some cases been resorted to. In this latter respect he differs from his old friend, that most delightful and talented of landscape painters, VILHELM KYHN, who prefers responsibility for the entire effect himself, leaving nothing to the mercy of the printer. Kyhn has done a great number of etchings, none very ambitious in dimensions and some almost diminutive in size, but most of them possessed of that charm which is essentially peculiar to Kyhn, arising out of a deep, one is tempted to say tender, life-long love of nature, of sincere study, of a susceptible temperament, and supported by a well-schooled, and at times consummate, technique. IT is a matter of regret that the clever painters, Anna and Michael Ancher, have not devoted more attention to the etching needle.

Danish

The former's Old Woman Reading is very attractive, and her husband's Three Fishermen is entirely characteristic of this painter's art. No one is so familiar with the hardy, weather-beaten Skaw fishermen as he, and it goes without saying that his studies are admirable. He has handled his needle with both skill and discretion; and it is a pity that it has not been allowed to perpetuate more of his trusty friends.

PROFESSOR OTTO BACHE, the eminent animal painter, has only just made his début as an etcher, but the outcome—Two Dogs' Heads—augurs well. The wonderful verve and force and the keen, observant study which distinguish so much of his work in oil and with the pencil, will no doubt stand the Professor in good stead as an etcher.

H. N. HANSEN has a wider scope, and a more pregnant imagination than any other Danish etcher. He has of late years almost left off painting, and has done some admirable work with the needle, full of individuality and invention. True that his line is at times somewhat erratic and that a good deal of the effect in such cases is due to tone, but the result is often, more often than not, singularly happy, and some of his etchings possess a warmth and a colour, a poetic and, in some cases, an almost plastic beauty only rarely met with. The fine powerful head of his Florentine will bear out this. In his most recent etching, Potiphar's Wife, the treatment is more delicate, and a happy blending of refinement and humour is observable in it. Some of his etchings charm by their classic beauty (Firenze, for instance), others by their generous humour (Don Bartolo); others again, and perhaps the best of them, by the fulness of their poetic mood and their great decorative effect (The Cestius Pyramid in Rome, Wild Flies the Hawk, The Old Mill, and many others).

SIGVARD HANSEN also in his etchings demonstrates his preference for the snow-covered landscape, and he depicts a wintry scene ably and effectively.

PROFESSOR HASLUND only now and again takes up the needle at long intervals. His work is on a small scale, but his line is good and true, and animal life is his favourite domain.

PROFESSOR FR. HENNINGSEN has, numerically, perhaps even less to his credit, but one or two little figure motifs of his are very deftly done.

AXEL HOU has etched for a considerable number of years. He is entirely self-taught, has experimented a good deal, and always makes his own needles and other requisites. His line is in some of his work both strong and characteristic, and his effect is solely obtained by etching. His portrait—portraits are his favourite subjects—of N. Hansen-Jacobsen, the well-known Danish sculptor, now living in Paris, is not only of much merit as a likeness—portraying as it does Jacobsen in an appreciative manner, and underlining the powerful individuality of his model—but it is a capital etching effectively designed. The introduction of some of the sculptor's work is done with discretion and skill.

PETER ILSTED must be counted amongst the best of Danish etchers, and it is interesting to see how closely his work with the needle resembles his work in oil. He is often inclined to go much into detail, but in spite of this he becomes neither sleek nor insipid. In his "Interiors," of which the Luxembourg has recently secured one, the simplicity of motif and the singleness of colour tend to produce an effect of chaste refinement, lacking a little perhaps in freshness, but telling their own tale with an earnest and charming sincerity. These qualities one finds again in his etchings, most pronounced perhaps in Girl at the Piano, although I prefer his portrait of his father.

E. KRAUSE is a young etcher of much promise, and it was quite by chance that he became one. His work is possessed of a very pronounced picturesqueness. There is warmth in his tone and he is a very clever draughtsman. He favours old-time buildings of topographical interest and beauty, and he prefers sombre night or late evening effects, which are mostly rendered by the aid of line-work, now and again sustained by a little tone. His The Six Sisters—six old houses in Copenhagen just demolished—illustrates in an ideal manner "a harbour city." The dark, rolling clouds, the waning light mirrored in the row of old windows and in the wet pavement; the effective silhouette of masts and rigging standing out black against the nocturnal sky, and the cluster of seamen and dock-hands in the foreground, combine to render admirably the exact mood of the picturesque scene.

KROYER'S portrait of himself affords ample proof of what the artist can do as an etcher should he, as it is sincerely to be hoped he will, again find time and inclination to busy himself with the etcher's needle. His lightness of touch, his freedom and subtlety of treatment, are evidenced in this portrait, in which he has relied solely on the line, which is clever throughout, although perhaps here and there a little capricious. The likeness is excellent—frank, genial straightforward. His portrait of Old Kyhn—what an ideal artist's head it is, with the beautiful eyes and the long white hair and

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

I believe it is owing to his initiative that men like Professor Bache, Professor Jerndorff and Professor Henningsen have taken to etching, and it is a matter of sore disappointment to him that Professor Hans Tegner, the famous pen-and-ink draughtsman, of Holberg and Andersen fame, did not persevere.

IT would have been a matter of considerable surprise had not Peter Mönsted proved himself an accomplished etcher, inasmuch as he is an admirable draughtsman, and handles his brush with the utmost virtuosity. The accompanying landscape proves, however, that he has, and few Danish etchers are capable of producing a finer effect than Mönsted. It has been laid at his door that he was somewhat lacking in sincerity; be this as it may, one does not feel it in his etchings. In these, too, he shows with what skill he handles trees, singly or in clusters, naked or in the fulness of their summer garb, against an often well-chosen atmospheric motif, or stagnant water in pond or ditch. He accounts in the deftest manner possible for the triple effect of what appears on the bottom through the cloudy transparency of the water, of what is mirrored in the water, and of what may be floating on its surface.

THORVALD NISS'S Danish Landscape is thoroughly characteristic of this highly gifted painter's art. It gives much of his dash and boldness and of that directness—of that instinctive directness—with which he knows how to render the exact mood, and often an awkward mood, of the subject before him, be it land or sea. His treatment is effective and convincing, although he is not by any means above taking liberties, from the strict etcher's point of view; but in all his work there is personality and manliness, which fully condone for any merely academic shortcomings. When in his happy mood Niss stands head and shoulders above most of his fellows, and the National Gallery of Copenhagen, as well as one or two private collections, are indebted to his brush for some of their finest landscapes and, more especially, marine subjects.

TOM PETERSEN has a fine sense of the charm of quaint old-time views, several of which he has treated with very fair success.

FRANTS SCHWARTZ one might be tempted to call the aristocrat amongst Danish etchers; he is self-contained and complete, possessed of a thorough control of the technique. He has done a great many, over a hundred, etchings, the majority of which, perhaps, are rather intended for the collector's portfolio than for a more or less indiscriminating public. He often favours dry-point, and in some of his work confines himself entirely to this method. In many of his studies he demonstrates the keenness of his power of observation, at other times he shows how well he is able to compose a picture. In The Annunciation the figure of Mary is charmingly simple and maidenly, and an excellent effect is produced by comparatively small means, a few lines sufficing for the soft folds of her garments and kerchief. The Three Kings aptly illustrates that passage of Heine which has been chosen for a motto. It is decorative and harmonious in its arrangement ; and there is much dead-man's dignity about the three skeleton kings.

Norwegian

IN Niels Skovgaard's Looking at the Snow the contrast between the children within and the wintry landscape without is cleverly and simply told.

NORWAY.

AT the eleventh hour some admirable etchings were received from JOH. NORDHAGEN, the well-known Norwegian etcher. Our arrangements were, however, so far advanced that we are only able to reproduce one, the Portrait of a Gentleman, an original work, in which the attention given to detail does not detract from its power and effectiveness. The forehead, the eyes, and the eyebrows, for instance, are perfect studies, and the masterly treatment has endowed this interesting head with an almost plastic beauty.

NORDHAGEN, who received the gold medal for etchings at the Paris Exhibition of 1900, has studied under Professor Karl Koepping in Berlin, and he has not only done a number of original etchings—studies of heads being his favourite subjects—but he has with his needle reproduced the works of several prominent Norwegian painters and of Rembrandt. We much regret the inadequate and cursory manner in which we are compelled to deal with such a prominent artist.

THE brilliant work of ANDERS L. ZORN has been so frequently illustrated and favourably criticised by "The Studio" that it is unnecessary to dwell further upon it here. Two admirable and characteristic examples of his etchings are illustrated, namely, Maja and A Mother.

GEORG BRÖCHNER.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 2—"PORTRAIT OF THE DANISH SCULPTOR, N. HANSEN-JACOBSEN"

FROM THE ETCHING BY AXEL HØU

PLATE 3—"A FLORENTINE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY H. N. HANSEN
(By permission of Messrs. Winkel and Magnussen)

“DANISH LANDSCAPE.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY THORVALD NISS

PLATE 5—"OFF THE COAST"

FROM THE ETCHING BY CARL LOCHER

PLATE 6—"BÖLLEMOSEN, EFTERAAR"

FROM THE ENGRAVING BY J. LÜBSCHITZ
(By permission of Messrs. V. Winkel and Magnussen)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 8—"LOOKING AT THE SNOW"

FROM THE ENGRAVING BY NIELS SKOVGAARD

PLATE 9—"THE SIX SISTERS"

FROM THE ENGRAVING BY E. KRAUSE

PLATE IO—"DOGS AT PLAY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY LORENZ FROLICH

PLATE II—"THE OLD HORSE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY SOREN LUND

PLATE 12—"THE THREE KINGS"

FROM THE ETCHING BY FRANTS SCHWARTZ

PLATE 13—"THE ANNUNCIATION"

FROM THE ETCHING BY FRANTS SCHWARTZ

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

really extraordinary. Now he accentuates every tiny detail, giving the minutest attention to every corner of his etching plate, then his manner suddenly becomes broad and full of force. Moreover, he can also, when he chooses, adopt a light and elegant style, displaying a truly surprising delicacy of touch, as in the ex-libris of Professor Tikkanen.

THE etchings of Simberg are marked by a similar originality and individuality, by an equal power of quaint, sometimes even grotesque, imagination, as are his paintings and his drawings. One of the very finest examples of Simberg's peculiar talent and originality of conception is his Peasant at the Gate of the Kingdom of Death; but the charming little work is more than that, it is a typical expression of the grave and speculative character, with its predilection to melancholy, of the people of Finland. The Garden of Death is a phantasy, alike grotesque and humorous.

MISS HILDA FLODIN is an artist who, though still quite young, gives promise of very considerable talent. Full of eager ardour for work, she is unwearying in the production of paintings, drawings, and etchings, everything she sets her hand to being marked by real intelligence and true art-feeling. There is something alike broad and forcible in her style of plying the etching needle, and some of her work recalls that of the best masters of the past. She draws well and accurately, and it is easy to see that increased mastery of technique is really all she needs, so that there is no doubt of her soon remedying her faults of execution, by dint of earnest and continuous study.

THE etchings of Miss Ellen Thesleff display the same delicacy of touch as do her drawings. Her Finnish Landscape—Winter reproduced here is full of refinement and charm.

ETCHING, properly so-called, is at present, with few exceptions, the only mode of engraving on metal practised by the artists of Finland. Etching in colour has not hitherto been attempted, and the so-called "soft ground" etching, mezzotint and "tutti quanti" processes are still unbroken ground, awaiting their pioneers. So virile and ready of expansion, however, is the new-born art of Finland, that it is not unreasonable to hope that in these directions also it will prove itself ere long worthy of the attention which was attracted at the Great International Exhibition at Paris in 1901 by the work of artists of Finnish extraction.

LOUIS SPARRE.

Norwegian

“MAJA.” FROM THE ETCHING
BY ANDERS L. ZORN

PLATE I

(By permission of Mr R. Gutekunst)

“A MOTHER.” FROM THE
THE ETCHING BY ANDERS
L. ZORN

(By permission of Mr. R. Gutekunst)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Finnish

PLATE 5—"STUDY OF A HEAD"
FROM THE ETCHING BY COUNT LOUIS SPARRE

PLATE 6—"GIRL EMBROIDERING"
FROM THE ETCHING BY MISS HILDA FLODIN

“FINNISH LANDSCAPE”
FROM THE ETCHING BY
AXEL GALLÉN

PLATE 8—"STREET IN GOSSLAR"

FROM THE ETCHING BY A. EDELFELT

PLATE 9—"ON THE WAY TO CHURCH"

FROM THE ETCHING BY COUNT LOUIS SPARRE

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

“PORTRAIT OF A GENTLE-MAN.” FROM THE ETCHING
BY J. NORDHAGEN

PLATE II

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN ITALY. BY ROMUALDO PANTINI.

ALTHOUGH the scope of this article does not include defunct artists, it seems fitting nevertheless to recall the names of some of them. Antonio Fontanesi, Tranquillo Cremona, Telemaco Signorini, are three names famous in the reformation of Italian art. They devoted themselves with as much ardour to etching as to the solution of the other great art problems, notably the plein-air theory. And as they were real artists in all they did, the technical expression of their engravings was equal to that realised in their canvases. Fontanesi was especially devoted to landscape motives, and did not remain indifferent to the influence of the French school of 1830 ; while Cremona's fine, bold, broad touch gave originality and delightful freedom to his plates. Signorini was essentially graceful and realistic. His literary leanings inclined him naturally to book illustration ; but his best work is to be seen in the album of twelve etchings dedicated to the "Mercato Vecchio" of Florence.

AKIN to the sentiment of Cremona was that of Mosé Bianchi and Luigi Conconi, also of Milan. But Bianchi, while in his little etchings seeming to follow the same motives and the same methods as the master, reveals complete independence in his large Monaca de Monza, after one of his own paintings.

LUIGI CONCONI'S decorative breadth is conspicuous in his impressions of ancient Roman arches ; he rises to even greater heights in his finely suggestive etching Solitudine. Mention must also be made of other two Milanese artists—of noble but very diverse temperament. I refer to Grubicy and Beltrami.

VITTORIO GRUBICY is a master, a leader, alike in etching, in teaching, and in propagandism. Starting from the logical conception that many effects of Nature—whose loveliness largely consists in the vigorous contrast of its chiaroscuro—can be expressed adequately in black-and-white, he has executed in Holland and in the Alps a number of etchings possessing a certain special note of melancholy. LUCA BELTRAMI is at once a most gifted architect and a historiographer of art ; but his severer studies have not prevented him from devoting himself assiduously to the eau-forte, some of his works of this kind having been greatly praised in the Paris Salons. His little etching, Dans l'atelier de Pascal is a marvel of luminous treatment, and among other good things of his must be named the Rue de Chartres, which well illustrates his genial versatility.

IN Turin there is quite a group of etchers, all well known in Paris as able "translators" of canvases. The two admirable eau-fortists, Carlo Chessa and Celestino Turletti, figure in the splendid volume wherein Giuseppe Giacosa has described the landscapes and recalled the dark tales of the Castelli Valdostani and Canavesani. This portly volume is, like the large edition of the "Medusa" (poems by Arturo Graf), one of the most beautiful books published in Italy for years past; it is well illustrated by original etchings and edited by M. Roux. THIS noble branch of engraving is cultivated by many Venetian artists, prominent among them being Cesare Laurenti and Giuseppe Miti-Zanetti.

MARIANO FORTUNY, JUNR., one of our finest artists, who still exhibits in the Spanish Salons, is also working in Venice, his best things being his strange but luminous studies of the female nude.

PROFESSOR COLOMBI, of Bologna, has produced several etchings after his own genre paintings, displaying consummate certainty of touch and a wonderful sense of perspective.

AUGUSTO SEZANNE, also a Bolognese, has done a fresh and luminous aquatint, styled Springtime—a charming thing full of feeling and decorative spirit.

IN Florence there is no School of Etching, but the city boasts one young exponent of the art, Giorgio Kienerk, whose dry-points are marked by agile and nervous grace.

GIOVANNI FATTORI, however, despite his advanced age, remains an eminent master of our Italian etchers. His rapidity of impression, sureness of movement, and boldness of outline, give him a place quite apart from, and far above, the others. The Tuscan Campagna, or the desolate Roman plains and marshes with artillery horses figuring therein, form his favourite subjects; and his broad vision of the battles of 1859 serves to reassert and reaffirm those technical qualities which go to make him our foremost, if not our only, military artist.

WITH Fattori studied G. Viner, G. Micheli and Plinio Nomellini, the last-named of whom has acquired much of his master's energy of conception, while retaining a distinct personality. The mysterious formation of his clouds and his waves are especially

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Italian

PLATE 1—"KING LEAR"

ETCHED BY PAOLO VETRI, AFTER D. MORELLI

PLATE 2—"CASTELLO DI GRAINES"

FROM THE ETCHING BY C. CHESSA

PLATE 3—"CASTELFUSANO"

FROM THE COLOURED ETCHING BY FRANCESCO VITALINI

PLATE 4—"EVENING"

FROM THE ETCHING BY VITTORE GRUBICY

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

PLATE 7—"IN A VENETIAN LAGUNE"

FROM THE AQUATINT BY G. MITI-ZANETTI

PLATE 8—"A STORMY DAY IN TUSCANY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY P. NOMELLINI

“A CHARGE IN 1859.” FROM THE
ETCHING BY G. FATTORI

PLATE 10—"IN AN ISLE OF DREAMS"

FROM THE DRY-POINT BY GIORGIO KIENERK

PLATE 11—"RUE ST. EMAN, CHARTRES"

FROM THE ETCHING BY LUCA BELTRAMI

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 14—"SPRINGTIME"

FROM THE AQUATINT BY AUGUSTO SEZANNE

PLATE 15—"SUNLIGHT IN A DARK LAGUNE"

FROM THE ETCHING BY MARIANO FORTUNY, JUN.

MODERN ETCHING & ENGRAVING IN SWITZERLAND. BY ROBERT MOBBS.

BRUN, in his valuable chapter on "Les Arts plastiques dans la Suisse allemande" in "La Suisse au XIX^{me} Siècle," touches upon the relation of such living Swiss artists as Robert Leemann, Charles Théodore Meyer, Albert Welti and Hermann Gatiker to the remarkable revival of interest in etching which characterised the latter half of last century.

There can be no doubt that these and other

Swiss artists have contributed in no inconsiderable degree to the development of etching not only in their own country but also in Germany, and that their work will compare favourably with the best that has been accomplished in this branch of late years in any other country.

FOREMOST in this group, and fitly serving as a typical example of modern Swiss etchers, stood, till some thirteen years ago, that erratic, original, powerful Swiss artist Charles Stauffer of Bern. His death was a widely felt loss to Swiss art. To convince ourselves of Stauffer's greatness as an etcher we have only to study his characteristically beautiful portrait of his mother, or those portraits of Gustave Freytag, Conrad Ferdinand Meyer and Adolphe Menzel which, as M. Brun says, "have, in their plastic rather than pictorial effect, never been surpassed." Stauffer utilised every means at his disposal, except the aquatint, obtaining wonderful results. He has left behind him one or two albums of etchings of rare value, containing work of extraordinary beauty and technical perfection.

WHEN we turn from this artist to Albert Welti we are confronted by quite another variant of the Swiss-German type of artistic temperament. Endowed with a rich, inventive, and in some sense sombre imagination, and possessing a marked predilection for symbolic and philosophic conceptions, his work bears the stamp of a strongly accentuated individuality, and occupies, in some sense, a place apart.

IN the treatment of the portrait, Balmer is undoubtedly one of the greatest living Swiss etchers. We regret that examples of this artist's achievements, as well as those of one or two other artists, have come to hand too late for reproduction in this Number. We hope, however, that we shall have the opportunity of referring at length to their work in the pages of "THE STUDIO." Balmer's etchings reveal a patient dwelling upon the subject till it has yielded up the innermost secret of its distinctive character and beauty. If ever an artist's work was expressive of himself and his best self, Balmer's is. His portraits of women and children reveal the working of an artistic temperament as sensitive as it is powerful. We have under our eyes an aquatint by this artist, the tone, shading and character of which are admirable.

IF the artists of Swiss-German origin have contributed not a little to the development of etching, their fellow workers in the French-speaking part of the country have been by no means behindhand. The etchings of Eugène Burnand and Evert Van Muyden possess the qualities of acknowledged masters in this branch of art. It was a happy day for Mistral when he lighted upon such an illustrator as Eugène Burnand, for all that could be done by means of "eau-forte" to evoke the characteristic beauty of Provençal landscape, and to interpret the poet's great work, this artist has accomplished.

IN another domain Evert van Muyden's etchings of animal life in a wild, sylvan environment reveal an extraordinarily nervous vigour of treatment and concentration of expression, and a remarkable knowledge and observation of the character and ways of "our brothers the animals."

RADOLPHE PIGUET'S album of etchings, dealing with subjects chosen from the National Exhibition opened in Geneva a year or two ago, is a delightful contribution to national art. M. Piguet has obtained marked success in dealing with the portrait. If he lacks the deeper feeling and power of the Swiss-German masters to whose work we have referred, his portraits reveal great skill as far as execution is concerned, and are graceful and captivating.

IT is a matter for regret that Edouard Ravel has not been able to devote more time to etching, for the plates he has already executed are of rare quality and promise.

LIKE Charles Giron, Gustave Jeanneret has for many years devoted himself to the painting of Swiss landscape and national types, and is one of the most distinguished landscapists in this country. Though pre-eminently a painter, he has also turned his attention to other processes. ALL who are acquainted with present-day Swiss painting have felt the charm of Mlle. Pauline de Beaumont's impressive landscapes. She has

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Know Your Bible

Forgotten Books' Full Membership provides unlimited access to more than 28,000 volumes of Christian literature for $8.99/month

HOLY
BIBLE

Continue

*Fair use policy applies

•
this work the pupil has rendered worthy homage to the great master.

THE modern Swiss artist is turning with zeal to many branches of art, and seeking to realise as complete a conception as possible of his vocation and its requirements.

ROBERT MOBBS.

"A BEAST OF PREY"
FROM THE ÉTCHING
BY E. VAN MUYPDEN
PLATE I

“A TIGER YAWNING AFTER SLEEP.” FROM
THE ETCHING BY E. VAN MUYDEN
PLATE 2

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS
Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Never be without a book!

Forgotten Books Full Membership gives universal access to
797,885 books from our apps and website, across all your devices:
tablet, phone, e-reader, laptop and desktop computer

A library in your pocket for $8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

PLATE 4—"WINTER-SAVOY"

FROM THE ETCHING BY M^{LE}. PAULINE DE BEAUMON

PLATE 5—"A SWISS FARMYARD"

FROM THE ETCHING BY EDOUARD VALLET

“THE BEST OF FRIENDS”
FROM THE ETCHING BY
R. PIGNET